At top, a tractor pushes the cargo-carrying fuselage into place on its own wheels beneath the cockpit of the plane. The ship (bottom) undergoes a test hop without the cargo "pod".

NEVADAN OPENS DEBATE ON LAW

Commie-Control Bill Chiefs Hope For OK By Next Week

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5—Proponents of the McCarran Communist-control bill have set the middle of next week as the target date for final congressional action.

Sen. McCarran, (D) Nev., and his backers seek speedy action to escape the fate suffered by somewhat similar legislation killed by adjournment in the 80th Congress.

McCarran, who opened debate on his bill today, predicted Senate approval by Friday despite President Truman's plea for a milder, less stringent control program.

The Nevadan said he then plans to invoke a parliamentary maneuver to send the bill directly to a Senate-House conference, thus bypassing the House which approved its own strong anti-subversive plan last week.

To do this, the senator hopes to have his bill substituted for the House measure.

THIS WOULD eliminate the time-consuming routine of committee hearings and make it possible to send the bill to the White House next week.

In the Senate, McCarran is confident that he can defeat an attempt by Sen. Kilgore, (D) W. Va., to remove the Communist registration provision and replace it with the power to jail

Communists during a national emergency.

McCarran charged that Kilgore is using a "skimmed milk" approach to the subversive-control problem and added that the West Virginian's amendment would "pull the teeth" from the bill.

The McCarran bill would establish a subversive activities control board to administer the act and to rule on whether organizations and individuals are in a Communist or front category and should register.

It would bar Communists and Communist fronters from federal jobs and from obtaining passports and would require the labeling of Communist-sponsored literature, broadcasts and telecasts.

These same provisions, plus the banning of Communists and fronters from defense industries, are contained in the House-passed bill. Both also tighten up espionage and sabotage laws and security regulations.

But the McCarran bill goes further to deal with subversive and criminal aliens in various ways, including the establishment of an independent agency in the State Department to handle passports and visas.

Crash Of Liner Being Probed

UTICA, N. Y., Sept. 5—Investigators today sifted through wreckage in an effort to find the cause of the crash of a Robinson Airlines DC-3 which took the lives of 13 persons.

Ten others aboard the plane which crashed and burned yesterday near the Oneida County airport here was injured and taken to hospitals.

the Senate, but it must approve the two bills and several conference reports before it can quit.

Congressional leaders are undecided on the manner of closing shop. They could: adjourn sine die until January; recess until a fixed date before January, or take three-day recesses as the House is doing and keep a skeleton crew on hand.

Adjournment would automatically kill off all pending legislation. A recess, however, would permit consideration of currently unapproved bills.

The Senate starts debating today the anti-subversives bill by Sen. McCarran, (D) Nev., who thinks the Senate will act on the measure by Friday and hopes for final congressional action by the middle of next week.

The Senate must also pass the

Congress Has Hopes Of Starting For Home In Next Two Weeks

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5—Congress hopes today to clear two home-stretch hurdles—Communist controls and defense appropriations—within the next two weeks and then go home.

The House, which returns next Monday from a 10-day recess, already has outdistanced

Defense Hikes Draftee Call

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5—The Defense Department announced today that the Army has called for 70,000 draftees to be inducted into the service during November.

The figure is 20,000 higher than the 50,000 each to be inducted in September and October, and brings to 170,000 the total number of draftees formally requested so far.

More Than 12,000 Casualties Noted On U. S. List In Current Korea War

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5—Casualties of U. S. armed forces in the Korean war are estimated at more than 12,000 today on the basis of official releases of the last ten days.

The casualty lists made public by the Defense Department during this period have averaged approximately 400 per day, with more than half of the total listed as wounded.

One indication of the size of the toll is a disclosure by the Military Air Transport Service that it plans to fly 200 pints of whole blood per day from the continent to the Far East.

The Defense Department announced last week that, as of Aug. 25, the verified list of American casualties whose nearest relatives have been notified totaled 6,886.

This would be the casualties up to approximately Aug. 10, as slightly more than two weeks is required on the average for verifying casualties at the various command headquarters and for notification of relatives.

Because of this lag, the official casualty list included only a few of the losses which the U. S. Marine Corps suffered in the Chinju offensive Aug. 11-17.

High-Powered Gulf Hurricane Swirling Into North Florida

MIAMI, Sept. 5—A Gulf hurricane seething with winds up to 125 miles an hour struck the Suwannee river area of Northern Florida today and moved slowly northeastward on a course that would take it diagonally across the state.

The Miami weather bureau reported that the center of the storm swept inland on the Florida west coast just south of Cedar Keys between 8 and 8:30 a. m. and continued on a northeastward path. Cedar Keys reported winds of

The casualties in this offensive were given as "moderately heavy."

One sharp change in the daily casualty lists has been noted during the last ten days. A far smaller percentage is listed as "missing in action," and more are listed as wounded.

Defense officials explain that this is because U. S. forces have maintained a fairly stable defense line since they withdrew from the Nakdong river on the night of Aug. 3-4.

Formerly, when they were fighting a delaying action, the GIs had to leave some of their dead and wounded behind, and these were listed as "missing in action" in the absence of definite knowledge of their fate.

Now, the dead and wounded are fully accounted for, and those listed as "missing in action" are presumed to have been captured.

The percentage of dead in the casualties continues to be small—about 15 percent in the latest list. As of Aug. 25, the department said there were only 503 dead among the more than 6,000 casualties whose relatives have been notified.

WORLD BODY GIVEN QUICK NOTIFICATION

Downing Of Russian Bomber In Korea Expected To Get Airing Before UN

LAKE SUCCESS, Sept. 5—United States notification of the shooting down of a Red-starred bomber off Korea, and the recovery of a Soviet crewman's body, was circulated immediately today to all United Nations Security Council delegates.

The bomber incident is expected to be taken up promptly by the council when it convenes this afternoon under the presidency of Sir Gladwyn Jebb of Britain.

An American delegation spokesman said that it had not been decided whether the U. S. would demand immediate Security Council consideration of the bomber incident. He said the delegation at that time still was awaiting instructions from Washington.

In Washington, the State Department announced that the body of a Russian officer was recovered from a twin-engine bomber "bearing a Red star" that was shot down off Korea after the plane had fired on a United Nations fighter patrol.

GRAVITY OF the matter was emphasized by the speed with which the UN was notified. It was assumed that all delegates would try to be prepared with instructions from their governments by the time the council convenes.

Let Us Have No More Jokes On Honest Cops

NEW YORK, Sept. 5—A couple of clever detectives, who have been nabbing nudist bathers with regularity on Long Island during the Summer season, had to admit today that they were "skinned" over the weekend when they hoped for their biggest haul.

Detectives Alex Sclar and Nicholas Petit had been on the watch particularly for persons they termed "Nature Boys." They had collared on the average of two a day.

Sunday the detectives went into hiding places and waited, expecting a grand sortie. The boys appeared. The detectives watched tensely.

There was much activity on the sand, but no clothes were shed. The "Nature Boys" departed and the detectives emerged to find some 500 clam shells arranged in a special salutation to them. The shells said:

"Good luck and God bless you two honest cops, members of the Nassau police department; Nature Boys, Inc."

of the shooting down of the Red-starred bomber, a captured North Korean major was quoted in a battlefield dispatch as saying "unless Russia gives us air support within the next two days our whole front will collapse."

The enemy officer, quoted by INS War Correspondent Frank Conniff, was among a group of prisoners taken on the Nakdong river front.

Identification papers found on the body of the airman, recovered by a UN destroyer, gave the name of Lt. Mishin Tennadii Vasilebiu "of the armed forces of the USSR, Serial No. 25054."

The U. S., reporting to the United Nations, said Vasilebiu's body was recovered from the wreckage of a twin-engine bomber, marked with the Soviet Red star.

The bomber was shot down after it opened fire on a UN fighter patrol off the west coast of Korea, at about the 38th Parallel, the boundary between North and South Korea.

In Tokyo, American officials refused comment on the Washington announcement of the shooting down of the Russian bomber.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's public information office and intelligence section denied knowledge of the incident.

A Navy spokesman quoted Vice Adm. C. T. Joy, commander of the U. S. Far East Fleet, as expressing "no comment."

WHAT ACTION the UN Security Council might take was not known in advance, but it was obvious from the speed with which the United States and the UN acted that the matter was considered to be of the utmost gravity.

The U. S. in its notification to the UN Secretary-General

Trygve Lie simply recited the circumstances under which the bomber was shot down.

There was no indication whether the American government intended to charge the Soviet Union specifically with aggression against forces carrying out the UN mandate in Korea.

Before the bomber incident exploded on Lake Success this morning, the first order of business on the Security Council agenda was to have been a U. S. resolution condemning the North Korean aggression. Soviet Delegate Jacob Malik is expected to wield the veto for the 44th time in opposing the American resolution.

The expected veto of the resolution by Malik will hardly affect the Korean effort by UN to smash the North Korean Communist aggression.

Malik cannot touch the pattern of troops, military aid and collective action set in motion by the Security Council before Aug. 1. At the moment, some 40,000 troops from a dozen nations other than the U. S. are en route to Korea or will embark shortly to fight under the global banner.

Western delegates feel confident, however, that a Russian veto of the motion to condemn the North Korean aggression will impress on the public as a whole the utter refusal of the Soviet Union to respect any peace efforts or desires inside or outside UN.

Fatality Total Of Past 450 Is Already Marked

The death toll for the nation's Labor Day weekend, certain to rise with final reports from the homeward rush, passed the 450 mark Tuesday, but there were indications traffic fatalities may fall short of the National Safety Council forecast.

A commercial plane crash near Utica, N. Y., that killed 13 and Saturday's excursion train crash near Milwaukee, Wis., in which nine perished, were the worst accidents of the three-day holiday.

An International News Service survey showed 359 persons have been killed in traffic accidents since 6 p. m. Friday. The National Safety Council predicted 435 would die between that time and midnight Monday night.

The toll of deaths in Ohio during the Labor Day weekend soared to a total of 24, including 17 fatalities in highway mishaps.

Two persons were killed by trains, another died in a plane crash. One youth was drowned and a baby was accidentally suffocated in his crib. A Cleveland died as the result of injuries he suffered in an elevator accident.

Lass, 7, Is Strangled For Feeding Lad's Dog

RAVENNA, Sept. 5—Don Oberholz, 17-year-old Ravenna high school senior, admitted to police today that he strangled seven-year-old Linda Hickman of Knoxville, Tenn., because she fed grapes to his dog.

The confession came after Oberholz joined in a police hunt for the girl last night. He was arrested when he returned to his apartment home after going to see a stock car race in nearby Barborton.

The victim's body was found in a closet in Oberholz's room by his mother, Mrs. Frank Sirk, who has remarried after an earlier divorce.

Oberholz had placed some socks around the girl's neck, apparently to mislead police into thinking someone else had committed the crime, police theorized.

Police said Linda and her divorced mother, Mrs. Marie Woods, were visiting James Woods, Mrs. Woods' brother, who lived in an apartment below the Sirk's suite.

Oberholz told police the girl "wandered" up to his room late yesterday and began feeding grapes to his dog. He said he warned her that the grapes would make the dog sick but she continued to feed him.

He grabbed her from behind and strangled her with his hands, police continued, and then placed her body in the closet.

The youth, who was to begin classes today, said the killing occurred late in the afternoon.

Linda was missed by her mother about six o'clock and police were called. Oberholz said he joined in a search for her body and then left for the stock car races with some friends. He returned early this morning.

He denied the crime at first, but later broke down and confessed.

The girl's body was taken to Cuyahoga County morgue for an autopsy. There were no signs of a criminal attack.

Taft Starts 3-Day Ohio Tour; To Be Near Here All Day Friday

COLUMBUS, Sept. 5—U. S. Sen. Robert A. Taft today began a three-day campaign tour that will take him through nine counties in eastern, southeastern and central Ohio.

Taft began his swing in McConnellsville with a meeting in front of the Morgan County courthouse and then a luncheon in Trinity Methodist church there.

In the afternoon, he was scheduled to speak in Byesville high school and in the courthouse square in Cambridge. He will go from there to a dinner meeting in Headley Inn, near Zanesville, and at night will speak in Zanesville auditorium.

Thursday's tour starts in Caldwell with two meetings, and then stops in Lewisville, Woodfield, Miltonburg, Jerusalem, Bellesville, Clarington, Hannibal, Duff, Sardis and Fly en route to Marietta.

On Friday—the 61st birthday of "Mr. Republican"—he will speak in Washington C. H., Mt. Sterling, London, West Jefferson and Plain City before his evening address in Marysville.

Meanwhile, Taft's campaign chairman, Willis D. Gradison, charged anti-Taft labor forces with "conducting a widespread campaign of lies, misrepresentations and distortions" about the senator's record.

Gradison quoted a 1946 statement by Jack Kroll, head of the CIO-PAC, that "America has a

Report Says Pohang Is Again Lost

'Our Boys Catching Hell Up There'

TOKYO, Sept. 6—(Wednesday)—Communist troops, pressing a 60,000-man offensive, captured Tabudong and Kasan north of Taegu Tuesday night and unconfirmed reports said the important port of Pohang on the east coast also has fallen to the Reds.

The reported fall of Pohang, second in importance only to Pusan as an Allied entry port, could not immediately be checked because of poor communications.

Taegu, central cornerstone bastion of the 120-mile United Nations defense arc, was gravely periled by Communist thrusts from the east and southwest as well as by the fall of Tabudong and Kasan.

Tabudong is 11 miles north of Taegu and Kasan, previously recaptured from the Reds by American troops, is 10 miles north of the key city.

A front dispatch from the Taegu sector telling of the Red seizure of Tabudong said "our boys are really catching hell up there."

The powerful Communist offensive toward Taegu was being waged on a 30-mile front and a telephoned dispatch said the city is "threatened more direly than ever before."

THE IMPORTANT highway center of Changnyong, 22 miles southwest, was entered by Communist units late Tuesday while Red guerrillas surrounded the city, but a front dispatch said it was not clear who held the city. The walled city of Kasan, 10 miles north of Taegu, was captured in fierce fighting by two Communist battalions which surrounded two American companies.

Other Communist forces of undisclosed strength were striking

Dewey Changes Mind About Renomination

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 5—New York state Republican leaders, successful in their drive to draft Governor Dewey for a third term nomination, strove today to draft Lt. Gov. Joe R. Hanley for the GOP senatorial nomination.

Dewey, who said last June he would not run for reelection, said he changed his mind because of the impact of the war upon the nation's largest state.

Dewey's step, which he couples with a strong new attack on the President and his conduct of the Korean war, caused speculation that the governor also may change his mind concerning a further try for the Republican presidential nomination in 1952.

Dewey and party leaders were still awaiting Hanley's decision on the governor's urgent request that the 74-year-old lieutenant-governor run for the U. S. Senate.

Republican leaders believe Hanley will decide to take the senatorial nomination, which he refused in 1946 and again in 1949.

Tarleton Gets New Marshal

Tarleton had a new town marshal Tuesday.

Mayor Walter Fox reported that the village council Monday night approved his nomination of Richard Albright, a retired railroad, as the town's number one law enforcement agent.

He replaces John Morrison who resigned because of the press of personal business.

Fox and Albright made a joint statement to the effect that strict law enforcement would prevail in the future in Tarleton. Fox added that the mayor's office would be open 2-3 p. m. daily.

toward Taegu from the north and east through mountain passes in the flaming offensive.

Red forces were exerting heavy pressure on Waegwan, 12 miles northwest of Taegu, but the U. S. First Cavalry was reported to be holding firm there.

Red units cracked the United Nations defense arc at several other points, including Sinnyong, 16 miles northeast of Taegu.

A front dispatch from International News Service War Correspondent Irving Levine received in Tokyo just before midnight Tuesday, said the Red troops punched a hole in the First South Korean Division's line just north of Sinnyong.

Levine reported that in the northeast sector three Communist divisions which opened a six-mile wide gap in the South Korean Capital Division's line hammered to within two miles north of Kyongju.

Kyongju is 17 miles northwest of Pohang and 34 miles east of Taegu.

EARLIER, an Eighth Army communique said that the enemy drive on Kyongju, an important road hub linking the Taegu-Pusan highway and railroad, had been "considerably slowed north of the city."

Levine said Tabudong fell to advance spearheads of the Red Thirteenth Division and other large elements of the division were deployed around the city.

Communications between Taegu and American field headquarters were so bad that Levine had to dictate his story to an Air Force colonel who relayed it by telephone to Tokyo.

The fall of Tabudong gravely menaced Taegu by opening the "bowed alley" route down a main level highway from the north.

The Red breakthroughs to the northeast threatened the main highway running through mountain passes from Pohang through Yongchon to Taegu.

The Communist invaders were reported nearing Yongchon, principal midway junction between Pohang and Taegu.

Counter-attacking U. S. troops were reported to have surrounded and wiped out 1,000 Red troops in slowing the enemy stab against Kyongju.

Twenty-eight miles below Taegu, U. S. Marines and Army troops scored a further one-mile advance in peeling down a big Red bridgehead east of the Nak-tong as some enemy units fled back across the river.

British Socialism Considered Flop By Churchman

DELAWARE, Sept. 5—A prominent Cincinnati attorney and churchman finds no record of success in British socialism and wants "local self-government and decentralization" for the United States.

Addressing the Ohio Area Methodist Pastors' School at Ohio Wesleyan university yesterday, Charles P. Taft, Cincinnati attorney, declared that a five-year demonstration of British socialism is not convincing.

Taft, a member of the central committee of the World Council of Churches, attacked demands for central planning for a stable economy in the United States. He said:

"We are far too ready, we reformers, to throw up the sponge in the city and ask the state to take over, to throw up the sponge at the state capital and shout for Uncle Sam."

"Local self-government and decentralization are essentials of effective Democracy."

Traffic Safety Program Given To Kiwanians

Circleville Kiwanians Monday evening received a straight-from-the-shoulder lesson in traffic safety.

Meeting in Pickaway Country Club, the group saw a series of motion pictures which was highlighted by a 20-minute traffic feature.

The club, which long had campaigned for a pupil-training course in the local high school and which will see that project realized for the first time this school year, found that adults, too, can learn a few things about proper conduct on streets and highways.

Projected by Ned Harden, the film had been prepared with the cooperation of the National Safety Council.

It coldly depicted how a dozen persons are killed every hour throughout the nation in traffic accidents—most of which could have been prevented if drivers were more cautious, considerate and thoughtful.

The picture stressed what happens when drivers are ruthless, too much in a hurry, selfish and bullishly.

Jet Airplane Pilot Suffers Fractured Back

A 26-year-old Airforce pilot suffered a fractured back and right ankle Sunday when he crash-landed his experimental jet airplane at a Chillicothe airport.

Authorities said the plane was an F-94 experimental ship operating out of Patterson field in Dayton on a routine instrument flight.

The accident occurred at about 4:45 p. m. Sunday when Lt. John M. Fitzpatrick crash-landed the craft at Sky Park airport just north of Chillicothe.

Lt. Cherry, accompanying the pilot as observer in the test flight, was reported uninjured in the crash.

Officials said that the pilot attempted the landing when his fuel supply was almost exhausted. He circled the field and came down on his landing gear.

However, the pilot retracted the gear after touching the ground in an effort to shorten his landing distance. The plane stopped just short of a thicket of trees.

Congress Has Hopes Of Starting For Home In Next Two Weeks

$16.7 billion supplemental defense bill now pending in its appropriations committee. Growing sentiment for rearming Western Germany might delay action on this bill somewhat.

Both houses must get together in conference committees on the $4.5 billion tax increase bill which has already passed both houses and on the anti-subversives and appropriations bills when ready.

Spurred by Russian infiltration and disruption abroad, the session went pretty much down the line in continuing Marshall Plan economic aid for free countries.

It put the country into the arsenal business in a big way by instituting a program of direct military aid to friends, particularly to members of the Atlantic defense pact.

It underlined President Truman's doctrine against Communist moves in the Mediterranean and Middle East by continuing arms-aid to Greece and Turkey.

The session also made a modest start on the President's Point Four program for technical assistance to under-developed countries.

But, on the home front, the session ditched almost completely the Fair Deal program by: Failing to repeal the Taft-Hartley law; failing to enact civil rights legislation; refusing, to all practical purposes, even to consider compulsory health insurance; declining to enact the Brannan Farm Plan; and failing to do much about federal aid to education and middle income housing.

Congress did liberalize the Social Security system.

Mrs. Ruth Neff Gets First New 3-Year Permit

Mrs. Ruth Neff of Circleville Route 3 is the first Pickaway Countian to receive the new three-year drivers' license.

Registrar Joe Brink of Circleville said he issued the permit to the Jackson Township driver early Tuesday to begin the sale of the new type licenses.

Brink said that only persons whose birthdays are in September or the first week in October are eligible to receive the permits to date.

"We are not able to issue the licenses until 30 days before the person's birthday," Brink explained.

Only two agencies in the county are qualified to issue the licenses. The other registrar is Mrs. Georgia Hoover of 46 Wright street, Ashville.

Local Amvets Eye Confab

Two Circleville men are expected to attend the annual Amvets convention beginning this week in Cleveland.

Commander James Callihan of the Circleville Amvets post said Tuesday that he and probably Charles Mumaw will attend the affair.

The "Sad Sacks," auxiliary group to the Amvets, was to have opened the convention with horseplay Tuesday, while the main convention is slated to begin Wednesday.

Orient Woman Gets Jail Term

An Orient woman was fined a total of $90 and costs and sentenced to 10 days in Pickaway County jail last weekend in the court of Magistrate Oscar Root.

Betty Tynor of Orient was fined $50 and costs and sentenced to five days in jail for assaulting David Thacker with pliers; $25 and costs and five days in jail for striking Ethel Marie Thacker; and $15 and costs for assaulting Muriel Self.

THE ENEMY AT HOME

Front Organizations Used By Reds To Make Gains

NEW YORK, Sept. 5 — Soviet Delegate Jacob Malik's recent fulminations in the United Nations Security Council are being echoed in countless Communist front organizations throughout the United States.

These numerous "fronts" serve as sounding boards for the vast Soviet propaganda machine operating throughout the world. They are perhaps the most effective weapon in the entire Communist conspiratorial apparatus.

The propaganda machine's purpose is simple and direct, but its machinations are not always easy to follow. The purpose is to confuse issues, to create doubt, to divide and weaken, to provoke internal disorder.

At the moment the so-called "peace petition" drive is probably the greatest single propaganda campaign ever undertaken by the Communist Party in the United States.

The appeal for "peace," and for outlawing atomic weapons, originated in Stockholm last March. In this country the goal of the Communists is to obtain five million signatures to the peace petition. Thus far approximately one and a half million Americans have signed.

The world goal of the Cominform, investigators say, is 300 million signatures within the next three months.

IN PUSHING the "peace" drive the National Labor Conference for Peace is the arm of the movement reaching into labor unions.

In New York, Marcel Scherer, a union official, is one of the leaders of the peace drive. Scherer was released from his duties as educational director of District 4, United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, to administer the signature campaign for the New York Labor Peace Conference.

This is the union expelled from the CIO last year as Communist-controlled and whose leadership has been repeatedly identified as Communist.

Scherer was one of the speakers at the World Peace Appeal in New York June 9. He also headed a delegation of thirty "labor leaders," representing the National Labor Peace Conference, which presented 150,000 signatures to the personal representative of United Nations Secretary-General Trygve Lie.

The big "peace" offensive was announced as the major business before the World Federation of Trade Unions at its meeting in Budapest last May.

As reported in the Communist press, President Giuseppe Di Vittorio called upon the federation to set up peace committees in all factories "for action against production for war and transport of arms."

Commenting on this action, Dr. J. B. Matthews, former director of research for the House UnAmerican Activities Committee, said: "In three words, the federation called for an 'organization for sabotage.'"

"The WFTU," Matthews continued, "represents the octopus-like tentacles of sabotage reaching into every non-Communist country in the world. It is the most important single organization in the Kremlin's preparation of the "fronts." They were never more artful than they are now, as "the enemy at home" redoubles its efforts against the interests of the United States.

The "Cultural and Scientific Conference for World Peace," held in New York's Waldorf-Astoria hotel last year, is cited as a classic example.

THIS CONFERENCE was convened under the sponsorship of the National Council of Arts, Sciences and Professions, which has been described in a lengthy report of the House UnAmerican Activities Committee as a Communist front, descended from the Independent Citizens Committee of Arts, Sciences and Professions.

Despite the fact that the conference was denounced by the State Department as Communist-inspired, it attracted some of the nation's leading scholars, including more than a hundred college and university professors drawn from 51 institutions in 21 states.

4,000 Farmers Receive Loans

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5 — The Agriculture Department reports that 4,000 farmers took advantage of the new farm housing program during the first year of its existence.

The department's Farmers Home Administration made a total of $18 million in loans to farmers who could find no other way to build or repair houses and other farm buildings during the year.

The FHA underwrote almost $12 million worth of new homes on 2,167 farms. The average cost of those dwellings was $5,373. Almost two thousand farmers used loans to make major farm building repairs. Others used loans to build or repair barns and other buildings.

CBS Is Given Inside Track On Color Video

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5 — The Federal Communications Commission has withheld a final decision on certifying television channels for color.

The commission said that it was postponing a decision to permit time to look into technical procedures.

The FCC said, however, that the Columbia Broadcasting System had the inside track for first certification for color television system at this time.

It said that the color systems of the Radio Corporation of America and Color Television, Inc., fall short of the commission's criteria for a TV color system. The commission said:

"The commission believes that if a decision has to be made now, the CBS system meets the criteria for a color TV system."

An FCC spokesman said that if some procedure can not be worked out with black and white video networks to bracket their programs within certain wave lengths then CBS would be certified for the entire color bracket.

OTHERWISE, the spokesman said, the "bracket standards" for color would be distributed among other color systems.

Pending straightening out of the technical aspects, the commission proposes: "Bracket standards' for the present monochrome standards, one of which will be the current black and white standards and the other the CBS proposed standards."

The commission said that it wanted to get color television into operation as soon as possible and that if monochrome bracket standards cannot be made final without a hearing it cannot postpone a color decision for very long.

Every 10 seconds the government spends $12,000.

STICK TO THE JOB
SERIOUS consideration is being given to the matter of the nation's industrial man-power in case the need arises for an all-out wartime production program. At the present time nearly 53,000,000 men and women are employed in peacetime factories and other non-agricultural occupations.
There are only 45,000,000 non-working people in this nation today above the age of 14 years, and 37,000,000 of these are women, mostly housewives. Secretary of Commerce Sawyer wonders if sufficient manpower can be drawn from this reservoir if the need arises.
He has only to review the events of the last war to learn the answer to his problem. Skilled workmen will be drawn from regular employment, as it was in World War II. They will go readily, and with the blessings of present employers, willing to make any sacrifice in behalf of national security.
Mr. Sawyer should not overlook the women, either. It was discovered during the last war that the best stenographers often made the best riveters.
The immediate danger, however, is the possibility that thousands of those now employed will quit their jobs in an attempt to get what could be a better one in a war plant. That need has not yet arisen. While a certain number of specially skilled men are being sought, these cases are not typical of the general situation.
Those now on a job should await the call for wartime duty. There is no need to fight the war at home until the time comes.

PIGS IS PIGS
HEARING tell of Doris Duke's proposal to build a model farm for pigs in New Jersey—with scented wallows—puts us in mind of the life's work of a friend of ours. Some people garden, others shoot, but he studies pigs. He knows all the champion strains and discusses sows, boars, and the like with easy familiarity. He has never owned a pig.
But his point has been that pigs are not naturally dirty creatures. He says man made the porker so and keeps him in muddy thrall. Given the proper instruction in basic personal hygiene and some help with beauty shop techniques, he says, the pig would grow larger, live happier, and a host of other comparatives.
Well, we don't know. Many a country dweller will be hard put to build a mind's eye picture of sheer contentment better than that of a sow on a hot day lying up to her eyes in cool mud. Or happily rooting about for something beneath the mud.
But Miss Duke's New Jersey establishment is to be $50,000 worth of downright daintiness. What comes of this pampered assembly line will be neither here nor there when the dear little hams swing from the hooks at the packing house. Pigs is pigs whether their snouts are covered with gumbo or Tabu.

Inside WASHINGTON
MARCH OF EVENTS
U. S. Korean Casualties May Reach 30,000 Total See Operations in Korea Taking Up to 10 Months
Special to Central Press
WASHINGTON—Best guesses at the Pentagon are that the Korean war will cost America between 25,000 and 30,000 casualties before a decision is reached.
This is based on the fact that casualties exceeded 2,600 in the first month of the war and are continuing at that rate or higher. Military opinion agrees that there is little hope of winding up the operation in less than 10 months.
Longest casualty lists so far are the rosters of the missing, followed closely by the wounded. Only a little more than 10 per cent of the casualties have been those killed in action.
As America builds toward a stabilized defense line and then a general offensive in the spring, the missing lists gradually become shorter. But if Communist resistance continues strong, the rolls of the dead and wounded will be longer.
Military experts say it is axiomatic that the attacker must expect to lose more men than the defender whenever heavy fighting takes place.
STUMBLING BLOCK—A rough behind-the-scenes battle is going on over the United States desire that Western European countries convert some of their peacetime production to manufacture of war weapons.

George E. Sokolsky's
These Days

After being suppressed for two years, the Wedemeyer report on China was issued in the State Department "white paper" a year ago, but the pages on Korea were omitted. The ostensible excuse was that the volume of more than a thousand pages that Dr. Philip Jessup prepared was limited to China and therefore could not include Korea—a conclusion which only a pedant could reach.
To make the record clear, the Wedemeyer report was submitted to President Truman in September, 1947. It was made public in August, 1949. The Korean section is still secret. The contents of such documents readily become known, however, and it is clear that had General Wedemeyer's advice been respected both as to China and Korea, we should not today be in our tragic situation of defending our honor and dignity.
As I understand it, General Wedemeyer found, in 1947, that the Cairo Declaration of 1943, which postponed Korean independence to "in due course," offended all Koreans and caused great resentment because the Koreans expected immediate independence upon the defeat of Japan.
This resentment was increased after the Moscow Conference of December, 1945, which agreed that Korea should be placed under the trusteeship of the United States, Soviet Union, Great Britain and China, for a period up to five years.
After V-J Day, by agreement with the four powers, the Russians, who had not been in the war a week, accepted the surrender of the Japanese in Korea north of the 38th Parallel, which established a barrier between North and South Korea, dividing the country arbitrarily and making a free and united Korea impossible.
The Moscow Conference provided for the formation of a provisional Korean government. The United States-Soviet joint commission, which was to do this, held its first meeting on March 8, 1946, and adjourned on May 28, 1946, without having reached an agreement. The failure was due to the objection of Soviet Russia to all but left-wing elements in Korea.
On May 21, 1947, the joint commission met again, but reached a deadlock in July on the same issue. Considerable correspondence passed between George Marshall and V. Molotov, but led to nothing.
Efforts to establish a provisional government for the whole of Korea failed because Soviet Russia, in possession of North Korea, refused to permit the Korean people, in a free and universal election, to decide for themselves who was to serve in that government.
In South Korea, the United States went ahead with the original plan of an independent Korea, placing Koreans in charge of administrative agencies. A Korean interim legislative assembly was established in December, 1946. Simultaneously, north of the 38th Parallel, the Russians established a "democratic front government," modeled along Soviet lines.

WHY PEOPLE BUY
THE RECENT buying spree was more universal than on any previous similar occasion. Stocks of motor cars, tires, certain food commodities and other household necessities were cleaned out in short time. Pleas by the national administration to remain calm and buy nothing more than actually needed had no effect whatever.
The reason for all this, of course, is because of previous experiences in time of war shortages. Rationing was one of the most objectionable of all wartime regulations. To have the means of paying for something, and then being unable to buy, doesn't set well with the American people.

"The doctor is getting a little behind in his appointments."

DIET AND HEALTH
A Proper Diet for the Aged

By HERMAN M. BUNDESEN, M.D.
PROPER diet is important at all times of life but never more so than during its later years. Indeed, many authorities believe that wise eating is our most powerful tool for the attainment of health and vigor in old age.
Elderly people are particularly apt to suffer from lack of the right kinds of protein. When too little of the right protein-supplying foods, such as meat, milk, and eggs, is eaten, there is wasting of the tissues, anemia, and edema. Anemia means that the blood is below par so far as its red cells and their coloring matter are concerned. Sufferers from this condition are likely to feel constantly tired. Edema refers to a collection of fluid in the tissues.
Protein in Blood
It is not a difficult matter to determine the amount of protein in the blood serum by chemical tests. If it is found by such a blood examination that a protein deficiency is present, additional protein foods must be added to the diet. One of the good sources is milk. It is not only a valuable source of protein, but also is one of the best sources for calcium or lime in the diet.
In order to avoid increasing the fat intake, it may be advisable to use skim milk instead of whole milk. Then, too, there are certain skim milk preparations available which have been fortified with iron and vitamins, that are ideally suited to keeping up the protein and vitamin intake for elderly individuals. Other good sources of proteins are yeast and lean meats. Nuts, also, supply protein, but many older persons find difficulty in digesting them.
Excessive Amounts
Eggs are a good source of protein, but they contain goodly quantities of the substance known as cholesterol. It is thought that cholesterol, taken in excessive amounts, may be a factor in the occurrence of hardening of the arteries. Just exactly what role an excessive intake of cholesterol may play insofar as hardening of the arteries is concerned, has not as yet been determined, but it is generally advisable that older persons avoid excessive amounts of foods which furnish this substance.
An adequate intake of protein is especially important before and after operations in older persons. Thus, before such operations and after, large amounts of protein should be supplied in the diet. Injections of amino acids into a vein may also be utilized. Proteins are made up of amino acids. Hence, these preparations may be used with great benefit.
QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
P. M.: Is there any special diet for arthritis? Are citrus fruits eliminated when a person has arthritis?
Answer: A person with arthritis does well with a well-balanced diet, supplying an abundance of proteins, vitamins, and minerals.
Since the citrus fruits are rich in vitamin C, they are a useful part of a diet for the arthritic person.

Louis J. Ansbacher, millionaire paint manufacturer of Elberon, N. J., was playing golf with his daughter Marian on the St. Andrews course in Scotland for five pounds a hole. Already irritated because he had lost three holes in succession, Ansbacher really blew his top when a missed putt of less than two feet cost him still another. He looked up angrily but not a soul had said one word, or moved an inch. The green was perfect. The wind had subsided completely.
Suddenly, however, Ansbacher spied a tiny boat in the distance, just over the horizon. He threw his putter angrily on the ground and grumbled, "How the heck can anybody putt with all these ships sailing around here?"
A couple celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary in Washington recently. Asked to select the present that had pleased her most, the beaming wife produced a note her husband had propped up on her bureau that morning: "Bride of mine: let's never quarrel until the honeymoon is over. I love you, Henry."

CHAPTER NINETEEN
THE SUN was pouring through the windows of the Abode of Everlasting Felicity when Walter awakened. He sat up in the low wide couch and looked down at Maryam who was still sleeping, her face turned toward him and resting on the palm of one hand. "What a blind dog I was!" he thought. "How could I have failed to love her the first instant I saw her?"
A high-pitched trill sounded from near the ceiling. Walter sat up straight and looked about him. "What was that?"
"I think," said Maryam, "it was Peter, though I cannot see where he is. I kept him with me all the time. I could not part with him. Mahmoud came with me last night, and I suppose he brought his beloved feathered pet with him."
Tristram awakened as soon as Walter entered his room. His long sleep had done him good, for he was able to raise himself to a sitting position. He grinned happily. "Ha, Wat! You are there in the flesh, so I know it wasn't just a dream."
Walter looked him over with a rueful shake of the head. "You are as thin as a crow in February! It will take a long time to get the flesh back on your bones, Tris. Those cruel devils had nearly succeeded in starving you to death. Maryam is here. She will come in to see you shortly."
In the days which followed it became evident that the yellow house in the thick green garden had been aptly named. The felicity of the newly married pair was so complete that it promised to be everlasting. Nothing happened to mar the happy hours, not a shadow of a quarrel, not a ripple of dissent between them.
The days followed a set pattern, and yet there was never a dull moment. Maryam would be up and bathed and dressed before Walter turned an unwilling head on the satin pillow they shared, and her cheerful, "Good morning, honorable husband," would evoke protesting groans from him. He would not be permitted a respite, however; Maryam would have plans made which required his immediate assistance.
Her Imperial Munificence was losing no chance to please the visitors of good omen. Baskets heaped with fruit arrived every day, and great masses of flowers, enough to fill the main rooms of the house. Once there was a bowl of blue glaze from the Brothers' Kilns of Guang-Chuan, an offering of such magnificence that Chang Wu clucked with amazement when he saw it. Once the daily gift took the form of a ring for Maryam, a band of plain gold set with a splendidly large sapphire.
Chang Wu paid a visit one afternoon, wearing an expression of intense anxiety.
"Chang-chia has fallen," he announced. "Bayan built great mounds around the walls so his mangonels and the Hua-Pao's could have full play. The walls crumbled, and then our gallant garrison was powerless to defend the city any longer." He shook his head sadly. "Bayan rode to the largest breach and held out his sword, and his men gave a great shout and went in. They killed every man, woman and child in the place."
"This means," said Walter, slowly, "that the road to Kinsai is wide open."
After a long pause, Walter asked, "What can be done about getting us away?"
Chang Wu answered ominously, "Plans are being made, younger brother, of which I will tell in due time."
Chang Wu returned during the evening.
The two men sat down to talk, and Maryam went to the other end of the room, where she curled up on a cushion.
"Tonight we will come for you," said the envoy in a whisper. "A day of meditation, starting at sundown, has been decreed for the court, and so there will be few about."
Maryam swung a bundle of clothing over her shoulder. The house was in darkness, and she reached out for Walter's arm, whispering, "The long journey begins, my love." He was carrying two large bags. In one he had packed the presents from the Empress and in the other everything he had collected in his study of the country, the compass, the Eye That Sees Far, specimens of paper, some Chinese writings, his voluminous notes. Mahmoud was somewhere near them, also loaded with bags.
"I feel very sad," whispered Maryam. "We have been so happy here! Do you think we will ever find the equal of this again?"
"Gurnie will seem like a cow byre compared with the palaces of China," he said. "But there will be compensations."
They made their way in the dark with the greatest caution. Walter asked curiously, "Did you sew the gems I gave you into the lining of your coat?"
"Yes. I have done everything you told me."
Tristram was waiting for them. Closed chairs were in readiness a short distance down the street, and a dozen discreetly silent carriers waited. They set off at once.
When they reached the neighborhood of the river, the streets were filled with noisy, milling crowds, and there was a threat of conflict in the air. They came to a halt. Chang Wu put his head through the curtains of the chair Walter shared with his wife. "There have been riots," he said. "A slight delay will be unavoidable."
They were taken to the curio shop which the old man owned, and he left them there while he went to investigate conditions at the wharves.

ONE MAN'S OPINION
Mr. Truman's request for $89 million "to combat Soviet lies" takes care of all lies-to-date. After that it's just a question of whether we run out of fresh money or they run out of new lies first.
The figures aren't broken down, but as the Soviet has had no more than 89 good, solid lies it works out to $1 million a lie. This is gross; no discounts.
Of course it means revising a few old saws. We've had to change one to "sticks and stones may break my bones but lies may break my wallet."
And our policy now has to be restated as "the truth shall make you free, but we'll have to pick up the check."
Anyway it's nice to know that such a handsome job is going to be done in behalf of truth abroad and if there's any money left over we might spend a little at home.
That won't be cheap either. You can't get much more for half-price than half-truths.

Survey Of College Grads Show 77 Pct. Of Women Now Are Housekeepers

Single Ones Earn $4,350

With college entrance day only a short time away, Pickaway County women—and men, too—were finding a recent national survey of intense interest.

Conducted by Mademoiselle magazine, the survey covered the 675 graduates of ten years ago of Smith College for Women and the University of Wisconsin.

Attempting to determine what these women are doing ten years after receiving their diplomas, the magazine said it found that 77 percent of those graduates now are devoting full time to housekeeping and child tending.

The typical girl of 1940 took a paid job after graduation but has since chucked it for a family.

She has been married 7.6 years to a college man who served in the war and who helps with the dishes and the children and earns $6,000 (the median) with $500 from investments. She has 2.2 children and wants more—outdoing her mother there. Her only household help is the sitter and an occasional cleaning woman. To the suggestion that she might combine raising a family with a job, she is apt to crack, "Do you kidding?"

Almost half say "they have had to make more adjustments and compromises, as women, than they were prepared for." About half think, too, that men have a more interesting time in present-day America. Yet to the question, "if you could be born again, would you rather be a man or a woman?" only 10.6 percent reply that they would rather be men.

Only 20 percent are still out battling the world, notably the single women of whom there are thirty-one out of those tabulated. Their average yearly earnings, $4,350 (the median), are quite a good deal lower than salaries earned by their classmates' husbands. As a group, the singles are surer than the marrieds that their minds are still "alert and growing" and as capable as when they left college. Already, at the age of thirty-two, a few have frankly put hopes of marriage aside.

While the singles are worrying about how to adjust to life without a man, the marrieds are still worrying about how to adjust to life with one. An impressive number comment on their lack of preparation for marriage and family life. "Somewhere, sometime, I should have been taught about marriage as a career, the psychology of living with a man and being a mother."

Having hooked herself to the hearth, the graduate of 1940 has hurled herself at the homemaking jobs with a vengeance. In her continued search for creativity her motto has become: Do it yourself; every girl her own decorator and workman.

Fatigue is her greatest enemy, making her short-tempered with her children and husband. And her chief regret is the lack of time for the mental stimulation of books, the lack of energy to pursue the interests that dominated her life at college.

Nevertheless, if this survey is typical, the class of 1940 seems to be making a go of marriage. The divorce rate to date is 2.6 percent, somewhat lower than other samples of female college graduates and well below overall figures for women who have been married between seven and eight years.

Legion Drum Corps Plays For Veterans

The local American Legion drum and bugle corps motored to the Veterans Hospital near Chillicothe Monday to participate in the annual program arranged for Labor Day afternoon for the patients.

Approximately two thousand patients walked slowly behind the colorful drum corps to the athletic field where the events for the afternoon took place, a tug of war, potato race, caterpillar race and other athletic events interspersed by the various selections of music played by the drum corps seated on a bandstand gaily decorated in red white and blue. Special numbers included several selections by the base trumpet trio composed of James Pickel, Russell Liston and Don Valentine.

Following the afternoon program the drum corps again led the procession of patients from the field and advanced to the area where patients were unable to leave their quarters and played in front of each of those buildings. Hospital attaches lauded the drum corps for assistance with this annual program.

Prizes for all the contests and races were provided by the drum corps for the patients.

Immediately after the concert the corps proceeded to the Legion post in Chillicothe and presented an hour's program.

Robert Grubb's musical director of the unit and Jack Simson is captain.

Bishop Disagrees With Anglican

COLUMBUS, Sept. 5—Bishop Michael J. Ready of the Columbus Catholic church diocese takes issue with a Church of England bishop who favors euthanasia and birth control.

The Anglican bishop questioned the "doctrine that human life is inherently sacred."

Meat Price Future Brings Optimistic View

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5—The Agriculture Department takes an optimistic view of livestock and meat prices during the rest of this year.

The department predicts that prices of hogs will decline seasonally this fall as marketings increase, but they will still be higher than those of last fall.

Prices of both grass and fed cattle may decline moderately during the early fall, the experts say, because of increased marketings, but probably they will make some recovery later on in the year or early in 1951.

Hog prices were steady in August, continuing near their highest point for the year so far. Prices of cattle eased off somewhat from their July peak.

Prices for all reported grades and classes of meat animals this

August were higher than a year earlier, but with few exceptions they were below the very high prices of two years earlier.

The department says that the consumer demand for meat is substantially stronger than last year. It says that the percentage increase this Spring and Summer in the retail value of meat consumed kept pace with consumers' incomes.

A PICKAWAY COUNTIAN IN DENMARK

BY BETTY JEAN RIDDLE

What a rush we've been in for the last two weeks. We left on the fourteenth and arrived in Copenhagen that evening. It takes two trains and two ferries to make the trip. Each time we had to pick up our bags and move it seemed they increased about two times normal size. There aren't any Redcaps, except in Copenhagen, one just picks up one's belongings and starts off at a trot to catch the next train or boat, just like a good Dane. Mike, Sandy and I ate dinner downtown, saw the movie Francis, and then caught a glance of Tivoli. We had a big time riding a ferris wheel, had to walk up steps about twenty feet high to get to it and then each little car had a big balloon on top, just like the old-fashioned ones in the pictures. Once they got the thing started it really whizzed, about twice as fast as any I've ever ridden at home. We also rode the roller coaster, etc. I think we really enjoyed the fountains, flower arrangements and the lights most. The one big fountain is built to change its shape four times every fifteen minutes. There are little fountains around it that change also, and all the time lights are also changing colors. There are flowers everywhere in formal arrangement, and they're changed according to the season. The buildings are built in Turkish, Chinese, and other architectural shapes and outlined at night by various colored lights. The prettiest one they tell me was a concert hall the Germans bombed during the occupation—it was illuminated by gas light.

All the while that you're enjoying the scenery at least three bands are playing in different places and one may sit and listen at will free of charge. Finally besides all the excellent places to eat there is a little "Fairy Inn" for all those Danes who like to sing and drink beer, and they all drink beer. Fortunately it is situated across the little lake and does not distract from the rest of the park. Strangely enough, all this is situated in the middle of Copenhagen and is the pride and joy of all Denmark. One of the first questions they always ask is, "Have you been to Tivoli?"

After the preliminary peek on Monday, International Harvester Company's representative, Mr. Gensen, took us Tuesday to help celebrate Tivoli's 107th birthday. This time we saw acrobats and the old French spelling pantomime which is put on every night—always free of charge. The interesting thing about the little show is that all the kids are let inside the rope around the stage and arranged by ushers according to size. We had dinner, investigated the penny arcade, the house of mirrors and then rushed out to see the fire works which were for the celebration.

thought everything was fine, but I reckoned without remembering that lady, luck had left me for the day. On arrival in Oslo I called the hotel where we were staying, talked to the boys and they asked me if I'd picked up my luggage before I left.

That was the last straw! They had left my bag at the Customs' House. If any of you have ever been in a European city and tried to buy something to wear when everyone is shorter and wider than you, you will understand. Fortunately I had packed a small bag to take to Oslo and had had to put a suit in Sandy's suitcase so I had at least one change of clothes. I had only a pair of high heels with me—on my feet and I wore them all the time, even on a picnic—cheated a little then and went barefooted. My feet rebelled finally and started to swell till I almost swore I had elephantitis, but they're back to normal now.

Actually we all had a wonderful time in Oslo—the town is celebrating its 900th anniversary and they have a new town hall that's colossal. Murals all over the walls showing the development of the town from the beginning. It is smaller than Copenhagen but beautiful with all the mountains around it. One of our delegates in Norway was up in those mountains in the snow just after he arrived in June and he's from Arkansas. I guess he was nicknamed "Iceberg" for short. Wonders never cease but we made the boat to come back and sailing out the fjord was beautiful. (That's the reason we took the boat to see it.) Also, I recovered my luggage with no trouble from the Customs House.

The following day International Harvester took us out to Kronborg Castle (where we saw Hamlet with Michael Redgrave) and we went through it. It has been made into a museum and has some of the most beautiful painting I've ever seen. They have a small chapel in it 600 years old. It has never been retouched and the little carved figures are just as bright as they were when new in their reds, yellows, greens and blues.

The Knights Hall is as big as a ballroom with huge oak rafters and a fire place in each end. The windows in the place were most fascinating—they were placed in walls that were five feet thick. From the windows you can look across and see Sweden—just about quarter of a mile across the sound. Next, we visited the Danish State experimental farms for animals. They had hogs, cattle, silver fox, mink. At this particular farm they do not experiment with breeding but with methods of feeding. They have seven sets of twin bulls that they use for these experiments and one set is equal to about 100 bulls selected at random for an experiment. We petted one silver fox, most of them bite, but this one was a real pet. They had to take care of it when it was a pup because its mother had chewed off its ear. Nice fox!

Wednesday we visited Copenhagen's shopping district and looked. Then, in the evening we attended a buffet supper, given for us and some of our Danish friends at Mr. Peterson's, the agricultural director for E.C.A. in Denmark. He and his wife are from Minnesota.

Thursday morning bright and early we hopped a train and came down to Ringsted to our new farms. I haven't checked with the boys for particulars about their farms but mine is quite different from the last. I'm living with a young couple on a sixty acre farm. They have a daughter, Doete, 3, and Hans, called Little Boy, 1, also his mother. They have 120 hogs and 14 cows, raise sugar beets, rape, wheat, oats, barley and a little clover. We have no car so I'm hiking with them all over the country. They have no tractor, but four horses. There are three men but no maids, except a chore woman that comes on Saturday. Although I have been earning my bread and butter the work is not difficult and it's really a good way to find out Danish methods. While I'm writing this I'm eating the famous Danish apple cake.

It's easy to make so I'll let you in on the secret. Cook your apples as you would for apple sauce, run them through a sieve and then add sugar to taste. Brown some bread crumbs from left over toast or dried out rolls in a little butter with a little sugar. Put a layer of this in a dish, then apples, etc., until you reach the top—then cover with whip cream. It's a good dessert but the Danes usually eat it at 3:00 when they drink coffee or at 9:00 when they eat a light snack.

At this place I've had no vegetables except a cucumber in vinegar and a tomato to eat on bread in the evening for supper. However, we've had so many apples they're about to run out my ears.

Either tomorrow or Wednesday we're taking the two children to the doctor for a check up about ten miles away. They ride in little baskets that fasten on the handle bars of bicycles and their feet stick through on either side while they ride backwards. If it's a boys bike there is a seat fastened on the bars. Then if you take two with you one rides behind. They even have a little baby buggy like a cart that will trail behind if necessary.

There are elections coming up in Denmark the 8th of Sept. and right now several men from different parties are arguing it out on the radio. These are the first in four years. One must be twenty-five to vote here—they don't think you know enough about it before.

Francis C. Hood, 4419 Wabash, Kansas City, Mo., says that HADACOL has done so much for him in giving him the pep and vitality he now has because he found out his system was deficient in Vitamins B1, B2, Nicotin, and Iron, that he wants to fill his pick-up truck full of HADACOL and give it to sick folks—so they, too, can be put on the road to feeling better.

This is Mr. Hood's statement: "Before I started taking HADACOL I was very nervous and sleepless all the time. Seems like no matter how much sleep I tried to get, it didn't work—I would just toss and turn all night. Then in the daytime I would be groggy and sleepy—I just felt miserable all the time. It really got me down—I was beside myself in knowing just what to do. Then one day I heard how HADACOL had helped many other sick folks.

"Now after taking 6 bottles of HADACOL I get a wonderful night's sleep and never wake up once during the night. I'm not a bit nervous any more either. In fact, right now I feel better than I have ever felt in my life, thanks to HADACOL."

YES, HADACOL Does Help thousands and thousands of fine folks who are suffering from deficiencies of Vitamins B1, B2, Nicotin, and Iron. HADACOL is wonderful in the way it builds up the hemoglobin content of your blood (when Iron is needed) to carry these precious Vitamins and Minerals to every organ, and every part of your body—to the heart, liver, kidneys and lungs, even to the eyes, hair and nails. Today, even hundreds of doctors are recommending HADACOL to their patients.

You Owe It To Yourself

to give HADACOL a chance. Refuse substitutes, don't let anyone tell you something else is "just as good." Insist on genuine HADACOL. You risk nothing because HADACOL is sold only on a strict money-back guarantee. You'll feel better with the first few bottles you take or your money back. Trial size only $1.25. Large Family or Hospital size, $3.50.

TERMITES
Cause damage in excess of fifty million dollars annually for REPAIRS alone. These destructive pests work in secret and destroy your property NOW. Have it inspected by an expert and be sure. There is no charge for the inspection, and if your property is not infested they will tell you so. If termites are present you will be SHOWN and a fair price quoted for a treatment which is guaranteed for TEN YEARS.

Many irresponsible amateurs—self-styled "exterminators" and "part time" entomologists offer fantastic "guarantees" and bargain prices, but you owe it to yourself to be SURE you are securing the services of a thoroughly reliable and FINANCIALLY RESPONSIBLE company whose guarantee really has a meaning.

An effective termite treatment must not only eliminate the termites now present in the structure, but also prevent the countless thousands of others who live in the GROUND outside the house, from returning.

The almost unbelievable cunning of the termite makes the successful treatment of your property a job for those who have the proper equipment and the KNOW HOW. Further, because of the termites tenacity and persistence it is sometimes impossible to completely exterminate them with ONE treatment. Therefore it is vital that the company doing the job be AVAILABLE later to return, if necessary. Unless you are SURE of this fact you may find yourself with a "Guarantee" but no one STILL IN BUSINESS to MAKE GOOD.

Always remember—a guarantee is only as good as the man who gives it.

We are local representatives of a reputable and FINANCIALLY RESPONSIBLE company who are ACCREDITED MEMBERS OF THE OHIO PEST CONTROL ASSOCIATION.

Merchants Win

By 7-4 Count
Over Hebron

Circleville Merchants baseballers Sunday netted a 7-4 victory over host Hebron Independents.

Hebron opened scoring in the encounter with a single in the fourth frame, adding a brace of runs in the fifth for a 3-0 advantage.

Circleville deadlocked the game at 3-all with a trio of tallies in the sixth inning, while icing the game in the ninth with a four-run spree. Hebron rallied to score a single in the final for the 7-4 count.

Pitcher Jack Hix scored 17 strikeouts during the contest to mark up the win.

Shortstop Abe Rihl aided the final inning scoring for the locals by blasting out a homerun over leftfield fence.

The Merchants have only one game remaining on their 1950 Tri-County League card, a return game against the Hebron aggregation. No date for the final game has been set.

SPORT LOSING TOP DRIVER

Sep Palin Sells Trotter For $25,000, To Retire

CHICAGO, Sept. 5—Just a few days ago the nation's press carried a news story to the effect that Ralph Kroening, Milwaukee contractor and ardent horseman, had purchased a two-year-old trotter named Mainliner for $25,000 from S. F. (Sep) Palin of Indianapolis.

This sale not only marked the highest known price to be paid for a Standardbred horse this year it also marked a turn of events that may prove to be a big loss to the sport of harness racing.

With the sale of the juvenile colt by Worthy Boy-Sister Mary, went the last active connection of the veteran Palin with the sport of light harness racing. He still has a colt named With-out Funds, that is not racing. He has already severed his connections with regular racing stables and although he says, "he may buy a colt or two this fall," it is hardly probable that he will ever again return to the turf as an active driver.

It was the canny Hoosier reinsman who drove the immortal Greyhound to a cluster of records and who still at this date holds the honor of giving more horses a "two minute" record along with Hugh (Doc) Parshall than any other sulky pilot, past or present.

PALIN NOW SAYS that he is going to Indianapolis and "take it easy for awhile" watching over his rather extensive farm property. Perhaps in his leisure moments he will hark back to his days of glory when he drove such outstanding stars as Winniepeg, Star Etawah, Victory Song, Hoot Mon, Chief Abbedale, His Majesty and a host of other top ranking performers and get the itch to return to active participation. Most of his friends say he won't; time will only tell.

Barring any error in records, there is only one Standardbred horse known to hold a coveted "two minute" record or better for both gait of sulky speed, the trot and pace.

This feat was accomplished by Calumet Evelyn, a black mare by Guy Abbey-Marion Scott, generally driven in her appearances by Vic Fleming.

On Sept. 21, 1935, the beautiful lady of the turf trotted against time over the Big Red Mile at Lexington in 2:00. Four days later, attired in hobbles, she won a pacing race in the remarkable time of 1:59 1/4 to enter the "two minute list" as a side-wheeler.

She was driven to both records by Vic Fleming who also drove the fastest Standardbred of all time, Billy Direct, to his world pacing record of 1:55 just three years later over the same track.

All-Stars Lose To Reformatory

Tri-County League All-Stars suffered a 7-5 defeat Monday at the hand of the Chillicothe Reformatory team.

All six of Circleville's All-Star team players entered the contest, which featured a 4-4 deadlock in the sixth frame.

Pitcher Jack Hix was losing hurler in the match. Other Circleville players in the lineup were Abe Rihl, Wilson Clark, Ed Webb, Dave Walters and Bob Steele.

The rumors had it that Boudreau would be named manager of the Sox succeeding Red Corriden.

61 Buck Grid Men Out For First Showing

COLUMBUS, Sept. 5—Ohio State's Buckeyes—61 strong, and eager as young bulls—took to the Ohio Stadium turf today for their first fall practice session of the 1950 football season.

Actually, the Buck huskies went through their initial drill strictly for the benefit of newspaper cameramen, newspaper photographers and sports writers.

But after today, it will be all work as Buck Mentor Wes Fesler embarks on his self-appointed four-week rebuilding task.

That 28-day program, aimed specifically at Ohio State's Sept. 30 opener against Southern Methodist, gets underway at a two-day clip tomorrow and continues as such every day thereafter until Wes decides his boys have about reached their peak.

That should be sometime around Saturday, Sept. 23, when Ohio Stadium's new press box and the Buckeye varsity are scheduled for a double premiere in a full-dress rehearsal scrimmage.

Whether this year's outfit can match the antics of Fesler's 1949 Big Ten co-championship crew will be a moot question. Gone from the Rose Bowl winning squad are 21 lettermen, including most of the regulars from both Fesler's offensive and defensive platoons.

Frost-Nipped Corn Should Be Ensiled Quickly, Best Says

Paper, Wire Silos May Be Needed

Tips On Harvest Given By Agent

"If frost catches corn at any time before the kernels are dried it should be ensiled at once. Supplementary silos of paper and wire may be necessary," says Larry Best, Pickaway County Agricultural agent.

"Paper and wire for these supplementary or emergency silos are easy to get now. After frost everyone may be scrambling for the same materials if the corn is hurt."

A variety of quickly prepared silos for corn includes the paper lines rings of welded wire or crimping, trenches wholly or partly in the ground, boxes of wood or concrete set on the ground, and for large tonnages, piles of chopped corn held in place by nothing but poles set close together in a circle or in rows. Certainly, the first ones to fill would be the tower silos, whether empty or already partly full, Best declares.

When frosted before the ensiling stage, corn should be ensiled as soon after frost as possible to save leaves and to reduce losses that occur in the standing stems.

IF USING A forage harvester, Best continued, be careful to keep the light, dry leaves in the wagon. See that corn cut and bound for ordinary silage cutters does not suffer unnecessary leaf loss.

Uniform distribution of the chopped crop in the silo will keep the leaves from accumulating in one place in the silo. Wherever there are only leaves, the resulting soft spots in the silage may later mold.

Dried leaves of frosted corn make the crop seem to be dry until it is cut up. Best stated, but added water is unnecessary and usually harmful to the silage. Water merely adds to the drainage juices.

On another subject, Best declared that a good seedbed may mean the difference between a good wheat crop and a poor one.

Two conditions are foremost in

Glass Workers Start Strike

TOLEDO, Sept. 5 — Members of the AFL-American Flint Glass Workers Union of North America struck against commercial glass plants in six states today.

Chief Is Dead

MIDDLETOWN, Sept. 5 — Thomas Carmody Jr., 44-year-old Middletown chief of police, died yesterday of a heart ailment.

preparing the seedbed for what. The first, continued Best, is a well settled condition; that is, freedom from airpockets and holes between the subsoil and the plow layer. This can best be assured if the land is plowed at least four to six weeks before seeding.

Rather than plow land for wheat only a week or so before seeding, Best says, it is usually best not to plow but simply disk the land.

THIS TYPE OF seedbed is usually inferior to an early plowed one but may be better than one plowed too late. In late plowing, unless there is a heavy rain to settle the seedbed rapidly, moisture conditions are not usually favorable for rapid germination and seed will sprout unevenly.

Truman Plans Telling Nation Of New Controls

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5—President Truman soon will tell the country what anti-inflation controls it can expect and how those controls will affect each individual.

In his speech to the nation Friday night, the President gave some inkling of the controls to come by remarking that "we will have to give up many things we enjoy." He said he will outline the program in detail with another national message.

The President has almost unlimited authority under a proposal to puncture any balloons that might pull the economy into an inflation spiral—including the power to impose price and wage ceilings and to ration materials and services to the consumer.

But the chief executive is expected to rely on other authority under the measure to insure priorities for defense contracts and to allocate vital facilities and materials.

Mr. Truman may also issue regulations to curb consumer installment buying and to cut down on credit for new real estate construction and remodeling.

If the President decides to slap on price ceilings, it is expected that he will use his "selective" powers and choose those items on which prices already have zoomed or on which they threaten to get out of line.

The word "hooch," to indicate liquor, is derived from the Alaskan Indian village of Hoochinoo, meaning "grizzly bear fort."

'Papa Is Doing Fine,' Pilot Says After Rescue In Korea By 'Copter

PUSAN, Korea, Sept. 5—Helicopters proved their worth today—if there were any doubters.

An Army helicopter rescued a Mustang pilot behind enemy lines just as a gun-waving North Korean officer rushed toward the downed flier.

A Marine helicopter picked up a Marine Corsair pilot near friendly lines three minutes after his parachute dropped him to earth, then whisked him to a rear command post.

Sunday another 'copter tried to rescue a crash-landed Mustang pilot who apparently took to the hills to try to make his own way back.

Two helicopters were credited with saving 18 GI lives Monday by rushing the wounded men back to rear areas for emergency medical treatment by specialists.

Here is one of these incidents: Army First Lt. Paul Van Boven of San Mateo, Cal., working his helicopter in the Pohang sector, went out to help a pilot of a Mustang downed in enemy territory by small arms fire.

Lt. Van Boven and a medical man, Cpl. John Fuentz of Kansas City, Kas., rescued First Lt. Robert B. Wayne of Garden City, N. Y., who parachuted from his crippled Mustang behind enemy lines above Pohang.

Four Mustangs covered Van Boven as he dropped his slow, clumsy looking 'copter to the ground. The Mustangs did a good job but small arms fire buzzed near Van Boven.

Another pilot in Wayne's Mustang group, First Lt. Ray White of Austin, Tex., took care of a North Korean officer advancing on Wayne with gun in hand.

Returning to his home base in Japan, Wayne was informed

"your wife just presented you with an eight pound baby boy. Mother and son doing fine." Wayne shot back: "So is papa."

NEVADAN OPENS DEBATE ON LAW

Commie-Control Bill Chiefs Hope For OK By Next Week

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5—Proponents of the McCarran Communist-control bill have set the middle of next week as the target date for final congressional action.

Sen. McCarran, (D) Nev., and his backers seek speedy action to escape the fate suffered by somewhat similar legislation killed by adjournment in the 80th Congress.

McCarran, who opened debate on his bill today, predicted Senate approval by Friday despite President Truman's plea for a milder, less stringent control program.

The Nevada said he then plans to invoke a parliamentary maneuver to send the bill directly to a Senate-House conference, thus bypassing the House which approved its own strong anti-subversive plan last week.

To do this, the senator hopes to have his bill substituted for the House measure.

THIS WOULD eliminate the time-consuming routine of committee hearings and make it possible to send the bill to the White House next week.

In the Senate, McCarran is confident that he can defeat an attempt by Sen. Kilgore, (D) W. Va., to remove the Communist registration provision and replace it with the power to jail

Communists during a national emergency.

McCarran charged that Kilgore is using a "skimmed milk" approach to the subversive-control problem and added that the West Virginian's amendment would "pull the teeth" from the bill.

The McCarran bill would establish a subversive activities control board to administer the act and to rule on whether organizations and individuals are in a Communist or front category and should register.

It would bar Communists and Communist fronters from federal jobs and from obtaining passports and would require the labeling of Communist-sponsored literature, broadcasts and telecasts.

These same provisions, plus the banning of Communists and fronters from defense industries, are contained in the House-passed bill. Both also tighten up espionage and sabotage laws and security regulations.

But the McCarran bill goes further to deal with subversive and criminal aliens in various ways, including the establishment of an independent agency in the State Department to handle passports and visas.

Crash Of Liner Being Probed

UTICA, N. Y., Sept. 5—Investigators today sifted through wreckage in an effort to find the cause of the crash of a Robinson Airlines DC-3 which took the lives of 13 persons.

Ten others aboard the plane which crashed and burned yesterday near the Oneida County airport here were injured and taken to hospitals.

Congress Has Hopes Of Starting For Home In Next Two Weeks

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5—Congress hopes today to clear two home-stretch hurdles—Communist controls and defense appropriations—within the next two weeks and then go home.

The House, which returns next Monday from a 10-day recess, already has outdistanced

the Senate, but it must approve the two bills and several conference reports before it can quit.

Congressional leaders are undecided on the manner of closing shop. They could: adjourn sine die until January; recess until a fixed date before January, or take three-day recesses as the House is doing and keep a skeleton crew on hand.

Adjournment would automatically kill off all pending legislation. A recess, however, would permit consideration of currently unapproved bills.

The Senate starts debating today the anti-subversives bill by Sen. McCarran, (D) Nev., who thinks the Senate will act on the measure by Friday and hopes for final congressional action by the middle of next week.

More Than 12,000 Casualties Noted On U. S. List In Current Korea War

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5—Casualties of U. S. armed forces in the Korean war are estimated at more than 12,000 today on the basis of official releases of the last ten days.

The casualty lists made public by the Defense Department during this period have averaged approximately 400 per day, with more than half of the total listed as wounded.

One indication of the size of the toll is a disclosure by the Military Air Transport Service that it plans to fly 200 pints of whole blood per day from the continent to the Far East.

The Defense Department announced last week that, as of Aug. 25, the verified list of American casualties whose nearest relatives have been notified totaled 6,886.

This would be the casualties up to approximately Aug. 10, as slightly more than two weeks is required on the average for verifying casualties at the various command headquarters and for notification of relatives.

Because of this lag, the official casualty list included only a few of the losses which the U. S. Marine Corps suffered in the Chinju offensive Aug. 11-17.

High-Powered Gulf Hurricane Swirling Into North Florida

MIAMI, Sept. 5—A Gulf hurricane seething with winds up to 125 miles an hour struck the Suwannee river area of Northern Florida today and moved slowly northeastward on a course that would take it diagonally across the state.

The Miami weather bureau reported that the center of the storm swept inland on the Florida west coast just south of Cedar Keys between 8 and 8:30 a. m., and continued on a northeastward path.

Cedar Keys reported winds of

The casualties in this offensive were given as "moderately heavy."

One sharp change in the daily casualty lists has been noted during the last ten days. A far smaller percentage is listed as "missing in action," and more are listed as wounded.

Defense officials explain that this is because U. S. forces have maintained a fairly stable defense line since they withdrew to the Nakdong river on the night of Aug. 3-4.

Formerly, when they were fighting a delaying action, the GIs had to leave some of their dead and wounded behind, and these were listed as "missing in action" in the absence of definite knowledge of their fate.

Now, the dead and wounded are fully accounted for, and those listed as "missing in action" are presumed to have been captured.

The percentage of dead in the casualties continues to be small—about 15 percent in the latest list. As of Aug. 25, the department said there were only 503 dead among the more than 6,000 casualties whose relatives have been notified.

Downing Of Russian Bomber In Korea Expected To Get Airing Before UN

LAKE SUCCESS, Sept. 5—United States notification of the shooting down of a Red-starred bomber off Korea, and the recovery of a Soviet crewman's body, was circulated immediately today to all United Nations Security Council delegates.

The bomber incident is expected to be taken up promptly by the council when it convenes this afternoon under the presidency of Sir Gladwyn Jebb of Britain.

An American delegation spokesman said that it had not been decided whether the U. S. would demand immediate Security Council consideration of the bomber incident. He said the delegation at that time still was awaiting instructions from Washington.

In Washington, the State Department announced that the body of a Russian officer was recovered from a twin-engine bomber "bearing a Red star" that was shot down off Korea after the plane had fired on a United Nations fighter patrol.

GRAVITY OF the matter was emphasized by the speed with which the UN was notified. It was assumed that all delegates would try to be prepared with instructions from their governments by the time the council convenes.

Let Us Have No More Jokes On Honest Cops

NEW YORK, Sept. 5—A couple of clever detectives, who have been nabbing nudist bathers with regularity on Long Island during the Summer season, had to admit today that they were "skinned" over the weekend when they hoped for their biggest haul.

Detectives Alex Sclar and Nicholas Petit had been on the watch particularly for persons they termed "Nature Boys." They had collared on the average of two a day.

Sunday the detectives went into hiding places and waited, expecting a grand sortie. The boys appeared. The detectives watched tensely.

There was much activity on the sand, but no clothes were shed. The "Nature Boys" departed and the detectives emerged to find some 500 clam shells arranged in a special salutation to them. The shells said:

"Good luck and God bless you two honest cops, members of the Nassau police department; Nature Boys, Inc."

of the shooting down of the Red-starred bomber, a captured North Korean major was quoted in a battlefield dispatch as saying "unless Russia gives us air support within the next two days our whole front will collapse."

The enemy officer, quoted by INS War Correspondent Frank Conniff, was among a group of prisoners taken on the Nakdong river front.

Identification papers found on the body of the airman, recovered by a UN destroyer, gave the name of Lt. Mishin Tennadii Vasilebiu "of the armed forces of the USSR, Serial No. 25054."

The U. S., reporting to the United Nations, said Vasilebiu's body was recovered from the wreckage of a twin-engine bomber, marked with the Soviet Red star.

The bomber was shot down after it opened fire on a UN fighter patrol off the west coast of Korea, at about the 38th Parallel, the boundary between North and South Korea.

In Tokyo, American officials refused comment on the Washington announcement of the shooting down of the Russian bomber.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's public information office and intelligence section denied knowledge of the incident.

A Navy spokesman quoted Vice Adm. C. T. Joy, commander of the U. S. Far East Fleet, as expressing "no comment."

WHAT ACTION the UN Security Council might take was not known in advance, but it was obvious from the speed with which the United States and the UN acted that the matter was considered to be of the utmost gravity.

The U. S. in its notification to Jebb and UN Secretary-General

Trygve Lie simply recited the circumstances under which the bomber was shot down.

There was no indication whether the American government intended to charge the Soviet Union specifically with aggression against forces carrying out the UN mandate in Korea.

Before the bomber incident exploded on Lake Success this morning, the first order of business on the Security Council agenda was to have been a U. S. resolution condemning the North Korean aggression. Soviet Delegate Jacob Malik is expected to wield the veto for the 44th time in opposing the American resolution.

The expected veto of the resolution by Malik will hardly affect the Korean effort by UN to smash the North Korean Communist aggression.

Malik cannot touch the pattern of troops, military aid and collective action set in motion by the Security Council before Aug. 1. At the moment, some 40,000 troops from a dozen nations other than the U. S. are en route to Korea or will embark shortly to fight under the global banner.

Western delegates feel confident, however, that a Russian veto of the motion to condemn the North Korean aggression will impress on the public as a whole the utter refusal of the Soviet Union to respect any peace efforts or desires inside or outside UN.

FATALITY Total Of Past 450 Is Already Marked

The death toll for the nation's Labor Day weekend, certain to rise with final reports from the homeward rush, passed the 450 mark Tuesday, but there were indications traffic fatalities may fall short of the National Safety Council forecast.

A commercial plane crash near Utica, N. Y., that killed 13 and Saturday's excursion train crash near Milwaukee, Wis., in which nine perished, were the worst accidents of the three-day holiday.

An International News Service survey showed 359 persons have been killed in traffic accidents since 6 p. m. Friday. The National Safety Council predicted 435 would die between that time and midnight Monday night.

The toll of deaths in Ohio during the Labor Day weekend soared to a total of 24, including 17 fatalities in highway mishaps.

Two persons were killed by trains, another died in a plane crash. One youth was drowned and a baby was accidentally suffocated in his crib. A Cleveland died as the result of injuries he suffered in an elevator accident.

Lass, 7, Is Strangled For Feeding Lad's Dog

RAVENNA, Sept. 5—Don Oberholp, 17-year-old Ravenna high school senior, admitted to police today that he strangled seven-year-old Linda Hickman of Knoxville, Tenn., because she fed grapes to his dog.

The confession came after Oberholp joined in a police hunt for the girl last night. He was arrested when he returned to his apartment home after going to see a stock car race in nearby Barborton.

The victim's body was found in a closet in Oberholp's room by his mother, Mrs. Frank Sirk, who has remarried after an earlier divorce.

Oberholp had placed some socks around the girl's neck, apparently to mislead police into thinking someone else had committed the crime, police theorized.

Police said Linda and her divorced mother, Mrs. Marie Woods, were visiting James Woods, Mrs. Woods' brother, who lived in an apartment below the Sirk's suite.

Taft Starts 3-Day Ohio Tour; To Be Near Here All Day Friday

COLUMBUS, Sept. 5—U. S. Sen. Robert A. Taft today began a three-day campaign tour that will take him through nine counties in eastern, southeastern and central Ohio.

Taft began his swing in McConnellsville with a meeting in front of the Morgan County courthouse and then a luncheon in Trinity Methodist church there.

In the afternoon, he was scheduled to speak in Byesville high school and in the courthouse square in Cambridge. He will go from there to a dinner meeting in Headley Inn, near Zanesville, and at night will speak in Zanesville auditorium.

Thursday's tour starts in Caldwell with two meetings, and then stops in Lewisville, Woodfield, Miltonburg, Jerusalem, Bellesville, Clarington, Hannibal, Duffy, Sardis and Fly en route to Marietta.

On Friday—the 61st birthday of "Mr. Republican"—he will speak in Washington C. H., Mt. Sterling, London, West Jefferson and Plain City before his evening address in Marysville.

Meanwhile, Taft's campaign chairman, Willis D. Gradison, charged anti-Taft labor forces with "conducting a widespread campaign of lies, misrepresentations and distortions" about the senator's record.

Gradison quoted a 1946 statement by Jack Kroll, head of the CIO-PAC, that "America has a Oberholp told police the girl "wandered" up to his room late yesterday and began feeding grapes to his dog. He said he warned her that the grapes would make the dog sick but she continued to feed him.

He grabbed her from behind and strangled her with his hands, police continued, and then placed her body in the closet.

The youth, who was to begin classes today, said the killing occurred late in the afternoon.

Linda was missed by her mother about six o'clock and police were called. Oberholp said he joined in a search for her body and then left for the stock car races with some friends. He returned early this morning.

He denied the crime at first, but later broke down and confessed.

The girl's body was taken to Cuyahoga County morgue for an autopsy. There were no signs of a criminal attack.

Gradison then quoted from a letter to Taft from President Truman which stated "no one has taken more interest in this subject than you have."

Gradison added:

"This is not the worst example of such lies by the PAC, but it serves to warn the people what they may expect from these elements."

Report Says Pohang Is Again Lost

'Our Boys Catching Hell Up There'

TOKYO, Sept. 6—(Wednesday)—Communist troops, pressing a 60,000-man offensive, captured Tabudong and Kasan north of Taegu Tuesday night and unconfirmed reports said the important port of Pohang on the east coast also has fallen to the Reds.

The reported fall of Pohang, second in importance only to Pusan as an Allied entry port, could not immediately be checked because of poor communications.

Taegu, central cornerstone bastion of the 120-mile United Nations defense arc, was gravely periled by Communist thrusts from the east and southwest as well as by the fall of Tabudong and Kasan.

Tabudong is 11 miles north of Taegu and Kasan, previously recaptured from the Reds by American troops, is 10 miles north of the key city.

A front dispatch from the Taegu sector telling of the Red seizure of Tabudong said "our boys are really catching hell up there."

The powerful Communist offensive toward Taegu was being waged on a 30-mile front and a telephoned dispatch said the city is "threatened more direly than ever before."

toward Taegu from the north and east through mountain passes in the flaming offensive. Red forces were exerting heavy pressure on Waegwan, 12 miles northwest of Taegu, but the U. S. First Cavalry was reported to be holding firm there.

Red units cracked the United Nations defense arc at several other points, including Sinnyong, 16 miles northeast of Taegu. A front dispatch from International News Service War Correspondent Irving Levine received in Tokyo just before midnight Tuesday, said the Red troops punched a hole in the First South Korean Division's line just north of Sinnyong.

Levine reported that in the northeast sector three Communist divisions which opened a six-mile wide gap in the South Korean Capital Division's line hammered to within two miles north of Kyongju.

Kyongju is 17 miles northwest of Pohang and 34 miles east of Taegu.

EARLIER, an Eighth Army communique said that the enemy drive on Kyongju, an important road hub linking the Taegu-Pusan highway and railroad, had been "considerably slowed north of the city."

Levine said Tabudong fell to advance spearheads of the Red Thirteenth Division and other large elements of the division were deployed around the city. Communications between Taegu and American field headquarters were so bad that Levine had to dictate his story to an Air Force colonel who relayed it by telephone to Tokyo.

The fall of Tabudong gravely menaced Taegu by opening the "bowling alley" route down a main level highway from the north.

The Red breakthroughs to the northeast threatened the main highway running through mountain passes from Pohang through Yongchon to Taegu.

The Communist invaders were reported near Yongchon, principal midway junction between Pohang and Taegu.

Counter-attacking U. S. troops were reported to have surrounded and wiped out 1,000 Red troops in slowing the enemy stab against Kyongju.

Twenty-eight miles below Taegu, U. S. Marines and Army troops scored a further one-mile advance in peeling down a big Red bridgehead east of the Nak-teng as some enemy units fled back across the river.

British Socialism Considered Flop By Churchman

DELAWARE, Sept. 5—A prominent Cincinnati attorney and churchman finds no record of success in British socialism and wants "local self-government and decentralization" for the United States.

Addressing the Ohio Area Methodist Pastors' School at Ohio Wesleyan university yesterday, Charles P. Taft, Cincinnati attorney, declared that a five-year demonstration of British socialism is not convincing.

Taft, a member of the central committee of the World Council of Churches, attacked demands for central planning for a stable economy in the United States. He said:

"We are far too ready, we reformers, to throw up the sponge in the city and ask the state to take over, to throw up the sponge at the state capital and shout for Uncle Sam."

"Local self-government and decentralization are essentials of effective Democracy."

Traffic Safety Program Given To Kiwanians

Circleville Kiwanians Monday evening received a straight-from-the-shoulder lesson in traffic safety.

Meeting in Pickaway County Club, the group saw a series of motion pictures which was highlighted by a 20-minute traffic feature.

The club, which long had campaigned for a pupil-training course in the local high school and which will see that project realized for the first time this school year, found that adults, too, can learn a few things about proper conduct on streets and highways.

Projected by Ned Harden, the film had been prepared with the cooperation of the National Safety Council.

It coldly depicted how a dozen persons are killed every hour throughout the nation in traffic accidents—most of which could have been prevented if drivers were more cautious, considerate and thoughtful.

The picture stressed what happens when drivers are ruthless, too much in a hurry, selfish and bullying.

Jet Airplane Pilot Suffers Fractured Back

A 26-year-old Airforce pilot suffered a fractured back and right ankle Sunday when he crashed-landed his experimental jet airplane at a Chillicothe airport.

Authorities said the plane was an F-4 experimental ship operating out of Patterson field in Dayton on a routine instrument flight.

The accident occurred at about 4:45 p. m. Sunday when Lt. John M. Fitzpatrick crash-landed the craft at Sky Park airport just north of Chillicothe.

Lt. Cherry, accompanying the pilot as observer in the test flight, was reported uninjured in the crash.

Officials said that the pilot attempted the landing when his fuel supply was almost exhausted. He circled the field and came down on his landing gear.

However, the pilot retracted the gear after touching the ground in an effort to shorten his landing distance. The plane stopped just short of a thicket of trees.

$200 Collected In City Court From Drivers

Traffic violators paid a total of $200 in fines and forfeited bonds into Circleville city kitty over the holiday weekend.

Four men forfeited bonds, while three were assessed fines by Mayor Thurman I. Miller. Forfeiting bonds were:

James Binkley, 34, of 315 Mingo street, arrested early Sunday morning for driving while intoxicated on East Main street. His bond was set at $100.

Edison Leroy Collins, 32, of Ashville Route 1, arrested for speeding on East Main street Sunday. He forfeited $10 bond.

Ralph Fausnaugh and Donald E. Fausnaugh, both of 116 West Mill street, arrested Sunday on South Court street for reckless operation, each forfeited $20 bond.

Front Organizations Used By Reds To Make Gains

NEW YORK, Sept. 5 — Soviet Delegate Jacob Malik's recent fulminations in the United Nations Security Council are being echoed in countless Communist front organizations throughout the United States.

These numerous "fronts" serve as sounding boards for the vast Soviet propaganda machine operating throughout the world. They are perhaps the most effective weapon in the entire Communist conspiratorial apparatus.

The propaganda machine's purpose is simple and direct, but its machinations are not always easy to follow. The purpose is to confuse issues, to create doubt, to divide and weaken, to provoke internal disorder.

At the moment the so-called "peace petition" drive is probably the greatest single propaganda campaign ever undertaken by the Communist Party in the United States.

The appeal for "peace," and for outlawing atomic weapons, originated in Stockholm last March. In this country the goal of the Communists is to obtain five million signatures to the peace petition. Thus far approximately one and a half million Americans have signed.

The world goal of the Cominform, investigators say, is 300 million signatures within the next three months.

IN PUSHING the "peace" drive the National Labor Conference for Peace is the arm of the movement reaching into labor unions.

In New York, Marcel Scherer, a union official, is one of the leaders of the peace drive. Scherer was released from his duties as educational director of District 4, United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, to administer the signature campaign for the New York Labor Peace Conference.

This is the union expelled from the CIO last year as Communist-controlled and whose leadership has been repeatedly identified as Communist.

Scherer was one of the speakers at the World Peace Appeal in New York June 9. He also headed a delegation of thirty "labor leaders," representing the National Labor Peace Conference, which presented 150,000 signatures to the personal representative of United Nations Secretary-General Trygve Lie.

The big "peace" offensive was announced as the major business before the World Federation of Trade Unions at its meeting in Budapest last May.

As reported in the Communist press, President Giuseppe Di Vittorio called upon the federation to set up peace committees in all factories "for action against production for war and transport of arms."

Commenting on this action, Dr. J. B. Matthews, former director of research for the House Un-American Activities Committee, said: "In three words, the federation called for an 'organization for sabotage.'"

"The WFTU," Matthews continued, "represents the octopus-like tentacles of sabotage reaching into every non-Communist country in the world. It is the most important single organization in the Kremlin's preparations for war in the guise of peace."

THE WORLD organization for this "peace" maneuver is the World Congress of the Defenders of Peace, headed by the famous atomic scientist and a vowed Communist, Frederic Joliot-Curie, with headquarters in Paris.

"It is unmistakably clear," says Matthews, "that the Kremlin has instructed the 'Defenders' to devote all, or almost all, their energies, to preparing for war under the camouflage of a 'mighty peace movement.'"

Thus what Soviet Delegate Malik has been saying in his hamstringing of the UN Security Council on the Korean war issue, has been repeated and emphasized through the myriad "front" organizations which zealously follow the Communist Party line.

The FBI and other official agencies point out that it has become increasingly difficult to combat these front organizations. Literally hundreds of them have been cited as Communist and subversive by the attorney-general and other government bodies.

It is apparently useless, however, to attempt to outlaw such organizations, law experts say, for the simple reason that the minute one is exposed it often will dissolve only to resume operations under another name.

They come and go with confusing rapidity, with new names, with varying "purposes," but always inspired and controlled by Communists or their sympathizers.

Unfortunately, the "fronts" seem always to be successful in attracting not only "fellow travelers" but also some sincere and highly respected citizens. They are known as the "innocents" who are deluded into thinking that the organization are all they purport to be—loyal to American institutions.

The Communists always have been clever in their manipulations.

tion of the "fronts." They were never more artful than they are now, as "the enemy at home" redoubles its efforts against the interests of the United States.

The "Cultural and Scientific Conference for World Peace," held in New York's Waldorf-Astoria hotel last year, is cited as a classic example.

THIS CONFERENCE was convened under the sponsorship of this "peace" maneuver is the National Council of Arts, Sciences and Professions, which has been described in a lengthy report of the House Un-American Activities Committee as a Communist front, descended from the Independent Citizens Committee of Arts, Sciences and Professions.

Despite the fact that the conference was denounced by the State Department as Communist-inspired, it attracted some of the nation's leading scholars, including more than a hundred college and university professors drawn from 51 institutions in 21 states.

4,000 Farmers Receive Loans

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5 — The Agriculture Department reports that 4,000 farmers took advantage of the new farm housing program during the first year of its existence.

The department's Farmers Home Administration made a total of $18 million in loans to farmers who could find no other way to build or repair houses and other farm buildings during the year.

The FHA underwrote almost $12 million worth of new homes on 2,167 farms. The average cost of those dwellings was $5,373. Almost two thousand farmers used loans to make major farm building repairs. Others used loans to build or repair barns and other buildings.

CBS Is Given Inside Track On Color Video

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5 — The Federal Communications Commission has withheld a final decision on certifying television channels for color.

The commission said that it was postponing a decision to permit time to look into technical procedures.

The FCC said, however, that the Columbia Broadcasting System had the inside track for first certification for color television system at this time.

It said that the color systems of the Radio Corporation of America and Color Television, Inc., fall short of the commission's criteria for a TV color system. The commission said:

"The commission believes that if a decision has to be made now, the CBS system meets the criteria for a color TV system."

An FCC spokesman said that if some procedure can not be worked out with black and white video networks to bracket their programs within certain wave lengths then CBS would be certified for the entire color bracket.

OTHERWISE, the spokesman said, the "bracket standards" for color would be distributed among other color systems.

Pending straightening out of the technical aspects, the commission proposes: "Bracket standards' for the present monochrome standards, one of which will be the current black and white standards and the other the CBS proposed standards."

The commission said that it wanted to get color television into operation as soon as possible and that if monochrome bracket standards cannot be made final without a hearing it cannot postpone a color decision for very long.

Every 10 seconds the government spends $12,000.

STICK TO THE JOB

SERIOUS consideration is being given to the matter of the nation's industrial man-power in case the need arises for an all-out wartime production program. At the present time nearly 53,000,000 men and women are employed in peacetime factories and other non-agricultural occupations.

There are only 45,000,000 non-working people in this nation today above the age of 14 years, and 37,000,000 of these are women, mostly housewives. Secretary of Commerce Sawyer wonders if sufficient manpower can be drawn from this reservoir if the need arises.

He has only to review the events of the last war to learn the answer to his problem. Skilled workmen will be drawn from regular employment, as it was in World War II. They will go readily, and with the blessings of present employers, willing to make any sacrifice in behalf of national security.

Mr. Sawyer should not overlook the women, either. It was discovered during the last war that the best stenographers often made the best riveters.

The immediate danger, however, is the possibility that thousands of those now employed will quit their jobs in an attempt to get what could be a better one in a war plant. That need has not yet arisen. While a certain number of specially skilled men are being sought, these cases are not typical of the general situation.

Those now on a job should avoid the call for wartime duty. There is no need to fight the war at home until the time comes.

PIGS IS PIGS

HEARING tell of Doris Duke's proposal to build a model farm for pigs in New Jersey—with scented wallows—puts us in mind of the life's work of a friend of ours. Some people garden, others shoot, but he studies pigs. He knows all the champion strains and discusses sows, boars, and the like with easy familiarity. He has never owned a pig.

But his point has been that pigs are not naturally dirty creatures. He says man made the porker so and keeps him in muddy thrall. Given the proper instruction in basic personal hygiene and some help with beauty shop techniques, he says, the pig would grow larger, live happier, and a host of other comparatives.

Well, we don't know. Many a country dweller will be hard put to build a mind's eye picture of sheer contentment better than that of a sow on a hot day lying up to her eyes in cool mud. Or happily rooting about for something beneath the mud.

But Miss Duke's New Jersey establishment is to be $50,000 worth of downright daintiness. What comes off this pampered assembly line will be neither here nor there when the dear little hams swing from the hooks at the packing house. Pigs is pigs whether their snouts are covered with gumbo or Tabu.

U. S. Korean Casualties See Operations in Korea
May Reach 30,000 Total Taking Up to 10 Months

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Best guesses at the Pentagon are that the Korean war will cost America between 25,000 and 30,000 casualties before a decision is reached.

This is based on the fact that casualties exceeded 2,600 in the first month of the war and are continuing at that rate or higher. Military opinion agrees that there is little hope of winding up the operation in less than 10 months.

Longest casualty lists so far are the rosters of the missing, followed closely by the wounded. Only a little more than 10 per cent of the casualties have been those killed in action.

As America builds toward a stabilized defense line and then a general offensive in the spring, the missing lists gradually become shorter. But if Communist resistance continues strong, the rolls of the dead and wounded will be longer.

Military experts say it is axiomatic that the attacker must expect to lose more men than the defender whenever heavy fighting takes place.

STUMBLING BLOCK—A rough behind-the-scenes battle is going on over the United States desire that Western European countries convert some of their peacetime production to manufacture of war weapons.

These Days

After being suppressed for two years, the Wedemeyer report on China was issued in the State Department "white paper" a year ago, but the pages on Korea were omitted. The ostensible excuse was that the volume of more than a thousand pages that Dr. Philip Jessup prepared was limited to China and therefore could not include Korea—a conclusion which only a pedant could reach.

To make the record clear, the Wedemeyer report was submitted to President Truman in September, 1947. It was made public in August, 1949. The Korean section is still secret. The contents of such documents readily become known, however, and it is clear that had General Wedemeyer's advice been respected both as to China and Korea, we should not today be in our tragic situation of defending our honor and dignity.

As I understand it, General Wedemeyer found, in 1947, that the Cairo Declaration of 1943, which postponed Korean independence to "in due course," offended all Koreans and caused great resentment because the Koreans expected immediate independence upon the defeat of Japan.

This resentment was increased after the Moscow Conference of December, 1945, which agreed that Korea should be placed under the trusteeship of the United States, Soviet Union, Great Britain and China, for a period up to five years.

After V-J Day, by agreement with the four powers, the Russians, who had not been in the war a week, accepted the surrender of the Japanese in Korea north of the 38th Parallel, which established a barrier between North and South Korea, dividing the country arbitrarily and making a free and united Korea impossible.

The Moscow Conference provided for the formation of a provisional Korean government. The United States-Soviet joint commission, which was to do this, held its first meeting on March 8, 1946, and adjourned on May 28, 1946, without having reached an agreement. The failure was due to the objection of Soviet Russia to all but left-wing elements in Korea.

On May 21, 1947, the joint commission met again, but reached a deadlock in July on the same issue. Considerable correspondence passed between George Marshall and V. Molotov, but led to nothing.

Efforts to establish a provisional government for the whole of Korea failed because Soviet Russia, in possession of North Korea, refused to permit the Korean people, in a free and universal election, to decide for themselves who was to serve in that government.

In South Korea, the United States went ahead with the original plan of an independent Korea, placing Koreans in charge of administrative agencies. A Korean interim legislative assembly was established in December, 1946. Simultaneously, north of the 38th Parallel, the Russians established a "democratic front government," modeled along Soviet lines.

THE RECENT buying spree was more universal than on any previous similar occasion. Stocks of motor cars, tires, certain food commodities and other household necessities were cleaned out in short time. Pleas by the national administration to remain calm and buy nothing more than actually needed had no effect whatever.

The reason for all this, of course, is because of previous experiences in time of war shortages. Rationing was one of the most objectionable of all wartime regulations. To have the means of paying for something, and then being unable to buy, doesn't set well with the American people.

The Korean war greatly intensified the issue, although the United States has urged North Atlantic Pact governments to get more defense effort out of their economies.

The European countries, however, do not want to set back the economic recovery they have achieved since World War II.

American representatives point out that this economic recovery has been made possible through Marshall Plan billions and that the recipients should be willing to make sacrifices now that the Communist menace has become greater.

But the European leaders stand firm on their demands that the United States make up whatever economic loss their countries may suffer by switching to war production.

● ONCE IS ENOUGH—Never again, if the Senate's Democratic leaders can help it, will Congress wrap up in one huge package the money needed to run the federal government for one year.

For seven months, lawmakers have been wrestling with the one-package bill and it still isn't tied up and ready for the White House.

The bill that passed the Senate runs to 482 pages, contains 510 amendments, and appropriates $34,761,932,231. No one has even tried to count the amendments in the 431-page, $29,494,340,164 House bill.

Senate and House conferees are struggling with the gigantic task of trimming here and there and adding odd bits so that the two bills come out the same size.

Eighty-one-year-old Senate Appropriations Chair Bill Headache man Kenneth McKellar (D), Tennessee, says the one-package bill has been the "most terrible task" he ever has tackled. McKellar agrees with Majority Leader Scott Lucas (D), Illinois, that Congress should appropriate money in separate bills for each government department.

However, Senate Republicans like the one-package idea. They contend it keeps the country aware of the tremendous cost of running the government. Thus, they argue, it makes wielding the economy ax easier.

DIET AND HEALTH

A Proper Diet for the Aged

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

PROPER diet is important at all times of life but never more so than during its later years. Indeed, many authorities believe that wise eating is our most powerful tool for the attainment of health and vigor in old age.

Elderly people are particularly apt to suffer from lack of the right kinds of protein. When too little of the right protein-supplying foods, such as meat, milk, and eggs, is eaten, there is wasting of the tissues, anemia, and edema. Anemia means that the blood is below par so far as its red cells and their coloring matter are concerned. Sufferers from this condition are likely to feel constantly tired. Edema refers to a collection of fluid in the tissues.

Protein in Blood

It is not a difficult matter to determine the amount of protein in the blood serum by chemical tests. If it is found by such a blood examination that a protein deficiency is present, additional protein foods must be added to the diet. One of the good sources is milk. It is not only a valuable source of protein, but also is one of the best sources for calcium or lime in the diet.

In order to avoid increasing the fat intake, it may be advisable to use skim milk instead of whole milk. Then, too, there are certain skim milk preparations available which have been fortified with iron and vitamins, that are ideally suited to keeping up the protein and vitamin intake for elderly individuals. Other good sources of proteins are yeast and lean meats. Nuts, also, supply protein, but many older persons find difficulty in digesting them.

Excessive Amounts

Eggs are a good source of protein, but they contain goodly quantities of the substance known as cholesterol. It is thought that cholesterol, taken in excessive amounts, may be a factor in the occurrence of hardening of the arteries. Just exactly what role an excessive intake of cholesterol may play insofar as hardening of the arteries is concerned, has not as yet been determined, but it is generally advisable that older persons avoid excessive amounts of foods which furnish this substance.

An adequate intake of protein is especially important before and after operations in older persons. Thus, before such operations and after, large amounts of protein should be supplied in the diet. Injections of amino acids into a vein may also be utilized. Proteins are made up of amino acids. Hence, these preparations may be used with great benefit.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

P. M.: Is there any special diet for arthritis? Are citrus fruits eliminated when a person has arthritis?

Answer: A person with arthritis does well with a well-balanced diet, supplying an abundance of proteins, vitamins, and minerals.

Since the citrus fruits are rich in vitamin C, they are a useful part of a diet for the arthritic person.

Louis J. Ansbacher, millionaire paint manufacturer of Elberon, N. J., was playing golf with his daughter Marian on the St. Andrews course in Scotland for five pounds a hole. Already irritated because he had lost three holes in succession, Ansbacher really blew his top when a missed putt of less than two feet cost him still another. He looked up angrily but not a soul had said one word, or moved an inch. The green was perfect. The wind had subsided completely.

Suddenly, however, Ansbacher spied a tiny boat in the distance, just over the horizon. He threw his putter angrily on the ground and grumbled, "How the heck can anybody putt with all these ships sailing around here?"

CHAPTER NINETEEN

THE SUN was pouring through the windows of the Abode of Everlasting Felicity when Walter waited. He sat up in the low wide couch and looked down at Maryam who was still sleeping, her face turned toward him and resting on the palm of one hand. "What a blind idiot I was!" he thought. "How could I have failed to love her the first instant I saw her?"

A high-pitched trill sounded from near the ceiling. Walter sat up straight and looked about him. "What was that?"

"I think," said Maryam, "it was Peter, though I cannot see where he is. I kept him with me all the time. I could not part with him. Mahmoud came with me last night, and I suppose he brought his beloved feathered pet with him."

Tristram awakened as soon as Walter entered his room. His long sleep had done him good, for he was able to raise himself to a sitting position. He grinned happily. "Ha, Wat! You are there in the flesh, so I know it wasn't just a dream."

Walter looked him over with a rueful shake of the head. "You are as thin as a crow in February! It will take a long time to get the flesh back on your bones, Tris. Those cruel devils had nearly succeeded in starving you to death. Maryam is here. She will come in to see you shortly."

In the days which followed it became evident that the yellow house in the thick green garden had been aptly named. The felicity of the newly married pair was so complete that it promised to be everlasting. Nothing happened to mar the happy hours, not a shadow of a quarrel, not a ripple of dissent between them.

The days followed a set pattern, and yet there was never a dull moment. Maryam would be up and bathed and dressed before Walter turned an unwilling head on the staid pillow they shared, and her cheerful, "Good morning, honorable husband," would evoke protesting groans from him. He would not be permitted a respite, however; Maryam would have plans made which required his immediate assistance.

Her Imperial Munificence was losing no chance to please the visitors of good omen. Baskets heaped with fruit arrived every day, and great masses of flowers, enough to fill the main rooms of the house. Once there was a bowl of blue glaze from the Brothers' Kilns of Lung-Chuan, an offering of such magnificence that Chang Wu clucked with amazement when he saw it. Once the daily gift took the form of a ring for Maryam, a band of plain gold set with a splendidly large sapphire.

Chang Wu paid a visit one afternoon, wearing an expression of intense anxiety. "Chang-cha has fallen," he announced. "Bayan built great mounds around the walls so his manganols and the Hua-Pao's could have full play. The walls crumbled, and then our gallant garrison was powerless to defend the city any longer." He shook his head sadly. "Bayan rode to the largest breach and held out his sword, and his men gave a great shout and went in. They killed every man, woman and child in the place."

"This means," said Walter, slowly, "that the road to Kinsai is wide open."

After a long pause, Walter asked, "What can be done about getting us away?"

Chang Wu answered ominously, "Plans are being made, younger brother, of which I will tell in due time."

Chang Wu returned during the evening.

The two men sat down to talk, and Maryam went to the other end of the room, where she curled up on a cushion.

"Tonight we will come for you," said the envoy in a whisper. "A day of meditation, starting at sundown, has been decreed for the court, and so there will be few about."

Maryam swung a bundle of clothing over her shoulder. The house was in darkness, and she reached out for Walter's arm, whispering, "The long journey begins, my love." He was carrying two large bags. In one he had packed the presents from the Empress and in the other everything he had collected in his study of the country, the compass, the Eye That Sees Far, specimens of paper, some Chinese writings, his voluminous notes. Mahmoud was somewhere near them, also loaded with bags.

"I feel very sad," whispered Maryam. "We have been so happy here! Do you think we will ever find the equal of this again?"

"Gurnie will seem like a cow byre compared with the palaces of China," he said. "But there will be compensations."

They made their way in the dark with the greatest caution. Walter asked curiously, "Did you sew the gems I gave you into the lining of your coat?"

"Yes, I have done everything you told me."

Tristram was waiting for them. Closed chairs were in readiness a short distance down the street, and a dozen discreetly silent carriers waited. They set off at once.

When they reached the neighborhood of the river, the streets were filled with noisy, milling crowds, and there was a threat of conflict in the air. They came to a halt. Chang Wu put his head through the curtains of the chair Walter shared with his wife. "There have been riots," he said. "A slight delay will be unavoidable."

They were taken to the curio shop which the old man owned, and he left them there while he went to investigate conditions at the wharves.

Walter was thinking of the danger in the carrying out of their plan created by this delay. The Great Bore, the high tidal wave which swept up the narrow course of the Ch'en-tang River, was due very soon. It was essential that they reach their ship on the opposite bank before it arrived. Would there be time?

It was a full hour before Chang Wu returned. They started out on foot, their full escort still in watchful attendance. When they reached the entrance to the moorings, a sentry challenged them. They passed inside, and Walter sighed with relief when he saw a pair of triangular sails against the sky ahead. He stopped, half believing that he could hear in the distance a humming like the muted beat of drums behind a hill. Had the Bore started?

Chang Wu had heard it also. "You must start at once," he said. "The Bore runs sometimes as high as twenty feet, and no skill could face it; but there is still time to reach your ship on the other side."

Walter felt his arms gripped on each side and rough voices commanding him to step ahead. He saw that Tristram also was being briskly propelled in the direction of the waiting skiffs. The face of Chang Wu appeared out of the darkness for a moment to say: "Farewell, younger brother. You and the Tall One must leave in the first boat. We dare not delay for the passing of the Bore. The others will follow later."

Walter tried to free himself, but his guards held him so firmly that the effort proved useless. He looked back over his shoulder desperately but could not see his wife. He felt himself being dragged down the steps of the mooring toward the waiting skiff. Then he was unceremoniously shoved aboard to find that Tristram was already there. Two guards jumped in after them, cutting the rope with their swords. They moved away from the shore.

The Great Bore was a rare spectacle in the daytime, with crowds lining the banks to watch its majestic sweep up the river and expert divers with colored plumes in their caps diving into the high white head of water. At night it was a different matter. They could hear a roaring in the distance as though all the Hua-Pao's in China had gone into action at once. It was too dark to see anything, but the boatmen had broken out their oars and were pulling at them desperately. Tristram leaned over to shout in his ear, "I don't think the river is very wide here, but it will be touch and go."

They made it with no more than a scant second to spare. The hull of the ship on which they were to sail up Kinsai Bay loomed up suddenly above them, a chain ladder dangling within their reach. Scrambling up, they could feel the ship give a convulsive lurch as the wash of the great wave reached it. An hour later they set sail. Maryam had been left behind.

Survey Of College Grads Show 77 Pct. Of Women Now Are Housekeepers

Single Ones Earn $4,350

With college entrance day only a short time away, Pickaway County women—and men, too—were finding a recent national survey of intense interest.

Conducted by Mademoiselle magazine, the survey covered the 675 graduates of ten years ago of Smith College for Women and the University of Wisconsin.

Attempting to determine what these women are doing ten years after receiving their diplomas, the magazine said it found that 77 percent of those graduates now are devoting full time to housekeeping and child tending.

The typical girl of 1940 took a paid job after graduation but has since chucked it for a family.

She has been married 7.6 years, a college man who served in the war and who helps with the dishes and the children and earns $6,000 (the median) with $500 from investments. She has 2.2 children and wants more—outdoing her mother there. Her only household help is the sitter and an occasional cleaning woman.

To the suggestion that she might combine raising a family with a job, she is apt to crack, "You kidding?"

Almost half say "they have had to make more adjustments and compromises, as women, than they were prepared for." About half think, too, that men have a more interesting time in present-day America. Yet to the question, "if you could be born again, would you rather be a man or a woman?" only 10.6 percent reply that they would rather be men.

Only 20 percent are still out battling the world, notably the single women of whom there are thirty-one out of those tabulated. Their average yearly earnings, $4,350 (the median), are quite a good deal lower than salaries earned by their classmates' husbands. As a group, the singles are surer than the marrieds that their minds are still "alert and growing" and as capable as when they left college. Already, the age of thirty-two, a few have frankly put hopes of marriage aside.

While the singles are worrying about how to adjust to life without a man, the marrieds are still worrying about how to adjust to life with one. An impressive number comment on the lack of preparation for marriage and family life.

"Somewhere, sometime, I should have been taught about marriage as a career, the psychology of living with a man and being a mother."

Having hooked herself to the hearth, the graduate of 1940 has hurried herself at the homemaking jobs with a vengeance. In her continued search for creativity her motto has become: Do it yourself; every girl her own decorator and workman.

Fatigue is her greatest enemy, making her short-tempered with her children and husband. And her chief regret is the lack of time for the mental stimulation of books, the lack of energy to pursue the interests that dominated her life at college.

Nevertheless, if this survey is typical, the class of 1940 seems to be making a go of marriage. The divorce rate to date is 2.6 percent, somewhat lower than other samples of female college graduates and well below overall figures for women who have been married between seven and eight years.

Legion Drum Corps Plays For Veterans

The local American Legion drum and bugle corps motored to the Veterans Hospital near Chillicothe Monday to participate in the annual program arranged for Labor Day afternoon for the patients.

Approximately two thousand patients walked slowly behind the colorful drum corps to the athletic field where the events for the afternoon took place, a tug of war, potato race, caterpillar race and other athletic events interspersed by the various selections of music played by the drum corps seated on a bandstand gaily decorated in red white and blue. Special numbers included several selections by the base trumpet trio composed of James Pickel, Russell Liston and Don Valentine.

Following the afternoon program the drum corps again led the procession of patients from the field and advanced to the area where patients were unable to leave their quarters and played in front of each of those buildings. Hospital attaches lauded the drum corps for assistance with this annual program.

Prizes for all the contests and races were provided by the drum corps for the patients.

Immediately after the concert the corps proceeded to the Legion post in Chillicothe and presented an hour's program.

Robert Grubb is musical director of the unit and Jack Simson is captain.

Bishop Disagrees With Anglican

COLUMBUS, Sept. 5—Bishop Michael J. Ready of the Columbus Catholic church diocese takes issue with a Church of England bishop who favors euthanasia and birth control.

Addressing 450 labor and management representatives who attended Labor Day mass in Columbus Holy Cross church, Bishop Ready referred to the statement of Dr. E. W. Barnes, Anglican bishop of Birmingham, England.

The Anglican bishop questioned the "doctrine that human life is inherently sacred."

Project Readied

MARYSVILLE, Sept. 5—Union County high school seniors, with the cooperation of farm agencies, will participate in a soil conservation day project Sept. 28 on the Ralph Herd farm.

Meat Price Future Brings Optimistic View

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5—The Agriculture Department takes an optimistic view of livestock and meat prices during the rest of this year.

The department predicts that prices of hogs will decline seasonally this fall as marketings increase, but they will still be higher than those of last fall.

Prices of both grass and fed cattle may decline moderately during the early fall, the experts say, because of increased marketings, but probably they will make some recovery later on in the year or early in 1951.

Hog prices were steady in August, continuing near their highest point for the year so far. Prices of cattle eased off somewhat from their July peak.

Prices for all reported grades and classes of meat animals this

August were higher than a year earlier, but with few exceptions they were below the very high prices of two years earlier.

The department says that the consumer demand for meat is substantially stronger than last year. It says that the percentage increase this Spring and Summer in the retail value of meat consumed kept pace with consumers' incomes.

Squeaking in shoes generally is caused by the friction between the different layers of material which make the soles.

A PICKAWAY COUNTIAN IN DENMARK

BY BETTY JEAN RIDDLE

What a rush we've been in for the last two weeks. We left on the fourteenth and arrived in Copenhagen that evening. It takes two trains and two ferries to make the trip. Each time we had to pick up our bags and move it seemed they increased about two times normal size. There aren't any Redcaps, except in Copenhagen, one just picks up one's belongings and starts off at a trot to catch the next train or boat, just like a good Dane. Mike, Sandy and I ate dinner downtown, saw the movie Francis, and then caught a glance of Tivoli. We had a big time riding a ferris wheel, had to walk up steps about twenty feet high to get to it and then each little car had a big balcony on top, just like the old fashioned ones in the pictures. Once they got the thing started it really whizzed, about twice as fast as any I've ever ridden at home. We also rode the roller coaster, etc. I think we really enjoyed the fountains, flower arrangements and the lights most. The one big fountain is built to change its shape four times every fifteen minutes. There are little fountains around it that change also, and all the time lights are also changing colors. There are flowers everywhere in formal arrangement, and they're changed according to the season. The buildings are built in Turkish, Chinese, and other architectural shapes and outlined at night by various colored lights. The prettiest one they tell me was a concert hall the Germans bombed during the occupation—it was illuminated by gas light.

All the while that you're enjoying the scenery at least three bands are playing in different places and one may sit and listen at will free of charge. Finally besides all the excellent places to eat there is a little "Fairy Inn" for all those Danes who like to sing and drink beer, and they all drink beer. Fortunately it is situated across the little lake and does not distract from the rest of the park. Strangely enough, all this is situated in the middle of Copenhagen and is the pride and joy of all Denmark. One of the first questions they always ask is, "Have you been to Tivoli?"

After the preliminary peek on Monday, International Harvester Company's representative, Mr. Gensen, took us Tuesday to help celebrate Tivoli's 107th birthday. This time we saw acrobats and the old French spelling pantomime which is put on every night—always free of charge. The interesting thing about the little show is that all the kids are let inside the rope around the stage and arranged by ushers according to size. We had dinner, investigated the penny arcade, the house of mirrors and then rushed out to see the fire works which were for the celebration.

During the war Tivoli has its 100th birthday and the Germans allowed them to have fire works. It was the first time the Danes had seen light in Copenhagen for two years and I guess everyone went to Tivoli that night. Perhaps you are wondering about the price of admission. It's just 10c. The park is open all day till midnight and it's almost impossible to find a piece of paper on the ground. That is typical of all Denmark at fairs, homes, etc. And, with all the little plays and concerts around one will never be shoved or pushed—everyone takes his time. In fact we find that the Danes always take their time and at first we three Americans had a time slowing down from the pace we're famous for the world over.

Wednesday we were supposed to go to Oslo on a boat. The next tale I shall probably never live down, for as the saying goes, I missed the boat. The boat was to sail at 4:00 from Farsen's Place in Copenhagen. At three o'clock we three trudged back to the hotel to collect our belongings. We had plenty of time—we thought, I had locked my passport in the hotel safe because I thought if anyone collected the $400 it's worth on black market it would be me. Well—it just so happened that the only key to the safe was in the possession of a lady who had gone to an eye doctor and which of the 500 in town they didn't know—neither did I. I sent the boys on to the boat with my luggage and told them I'd come.

So—I sat in the hotel till 4:01 when the lady returned with the key. In a way it was very funny and I couldn't lose my temper, but the boys at the desk were pacing up and down. One was out front meeting all the street cars, the bell boy was holding a taxi with the door open and one man was frantically trying to reach the ship by telephone. All in vain. I was rushed to the dock and waved good bye as the ship sailed away. Then I headed for the Embassy. They got me a berth on the train leaving at 9:00 and arriving in Oslo one hour later than the ship. I thought everything was fine, but I reckoned without remembering that lady luck had left me for the day. On arrival in Oslo I called the hotel where we were staying, talked to the boys and they asked me if I'd picked up my luggage before I left.

That was the last straw! They had left my bag at the Custom's House. If any of you have ever been in a European city and tried to buy something to wear when everyone is shorter and wider than you, you will understand. Fortunately I had packed a small bag to take to Oslo and had had to put a suit in Sandy's suitcase so I had at least one change of clothes. I had only a pair of high heels with me—on my feet and I wore them the whole time, even on a picnic—cheated a little then and went barefooted. My feet rebelled finally and started to swell till I almost swore I had elephantitis, but they're back to normal now.

Actually we all had a wonderful time in Oslo—the town is celebrating its 900th anniversary and they have a new town hall that's colossal. Murals all over the walls showing the development of the town from the beginning. It is smaller than Copenhagen but beautiful with all the mountains around it. One of our delegates in Norway was up in those mountains in the snow just after he arrived in June and he's from Arkansas. I guess he was nicknamed "Iceberg" for short. Wonders never cease but we made the boat to come back and sailing out the fjord was beautiful. (That's the reason we took the boat to see it.) Also, I recovered my luggage with no trouble from the Customs House.

The following day International Harvester took us out to Kronborg Castle (where we saw Hamlet with Michael Redgrave) and we went through it. It has been made into a museum and has some of the most beautiful painting I've ever seen. They have a small chapel in it 600 years old. It has never been retouched and the little carved figures are just as bright as they were when new in their reds, yellows, greens and blues.

The Knights Hall is as big as a ballroom with huge oak rafters and a fire place in each end. The windows in the place were most fascinating—they were placed in walls that were five feet thick. From the windows you can look across and see Sweden—just about quarter of a mile across the sound. Next, we visited the Danish State experimental farms for animals.

They had hogs, cattle, silver fox, mink. At this particular farm they do not experiment with breeding but with methods of feeding. They have seven sets of twin bulls that they use for these experiments and one set is equal to about 100 bulls selected at random for an experiment. We petted one silver fox, most of them bite, but this one was a real pet. They had to take care of it when it was a pup because its mother had chewed off its ear. Nice fox!

Wednesday we visited Copenhagen's shopping district and looked. Then, in the evening we attended a buffet supper, given for us and some of our Danish friends at Mr. Peterson's, the agricultural director for E.C.A. in Denmark. He and his wife are from Minnesota.

Thursday morning bright and early we hopped a train and came down to Ringsted to our new farms. I haven't checked with the boys for particulars about their farms but mine is quite different from the last. I'm living with a young couple on a sixty acre farm. They have a daughter, Doete, 3, and Hans, called Little Boy, 1, also his mother. They have 120 hogs and 14 cows, raise sugar beets, rape, wheat, oats, barley and a little clover. We have no car so I'm hiking with them all over the country. They have no tractor, but four horses. There are three men but no maids, except a chore woman that comes on Saturday. Although I have been earning my bread and butter the work is not difficult and it's really a good way to find out Danish methods. While I'm writing this I'm eating the famous Danish apple cake.

It's easy to make so I'll let you in on the secret. Cook your apples as you would for apple sauce, run them through a sieve and then add sugar to taste. Brown some bread crumbs from left over toast or dried out rolls in a little butter with a little sugar. Put a layer of this in a dish, then apples, etc, until you reach the top—then cover with whip cream. It's a good dessert but the Danes usually eat it at 3:00 when they drink coffee or at 9:00 when they eat a light snack.

At this place I've had no vegetables except a cucumber in vinegar and a tomato to eat on bread in the evening for supper. However, we've had so many apples they're about to run out my ears.

Either tomorrow or Wednesday we're taking the two children to the doctor for a check up about ten miles away. They ride in little baskets that fasten on the handle bars of bicycles and their feet stick through on either side while they ride backwards. If it's a boys bike there is a seat fastened on the bars. Then if you take two with you one rides behind. They even have a little baby buggy like a cart that will trail behind if necessary.

There are elections coming up in Denmark the 8th of Sept. and right now several men from different parties are arguing it out on the radio. These are the first in four years. One must be twenty-five to vote here—they don't think you know enough about it before.

Francis C. Hood, 4419 Wabash, Kansas City, Mo., says that HADACOL has done so much for him in giving him the pep and vitality he now has because he found out his system was deficient in Vitamins B1, B2, Nicotin, and Iron, that he wants to fill his pick-up truck full of HADACOL and give it to sick folks—so they, too, can be put on the road to feeling better.

This is Mr. Hood's statement: "Before I started taking HADACOL I was very nervous and sleepy all the time. Seems like no matter how much sleep I tried to get, it didn't work—I would just toss and turn all night. Then in the daytime I would be groggy and sleepy—I just felt miserable all the time. It really got me down—I was beside myself in knowing just what to do. Then one day I heard how HADACOL had helped many other sick folks.

"Now after taking 6 bottles of HADACOL I get a wonderful night's sleep and never wake up once during the night. I'm not a bit nervous any more either. In fact, right now I feel better than I have ever felt in my life, thanks to HADACOL."

YES, HADACOL Does Help thousands and thousands of fine folks who are suffering from deficiencies of Vitamins B1, B2, Nicotin, and Iron. HADACOL is wonderful in the way it builds up the hemoglobin content of your blood (when Iron is needed) to carry these precious Vitamins and Minerals to every organ, and every part of your body—to the heart, liver, kidneys and lungs, even to the eyes, hair and nails. Today, even hundreds of doctors are recommending HADACOL to their patients.

You Owe It To Yourself to give HADACOL a chance. Refuse substitutes, don't let anyone tell you something else is "just as good." Insist on genuine HADACOL. You risk nothing because HADACOL is sold only on a strict money-back guarantee. You'll feel better with the first few bottles you take or your money back. Trial size only $1.25. Large Family or Hospital size, $3.50.

Have it inspected by an expert and be sure. There is no charge for the inspection, and if your property is not infested they will tell you so. If termites are present, we will SHOW you a fair price quoted for a treatment which is guaranteed for TEN YEARS.

Many irresponsible amateurs—self-styled "exterminators" and "part-time" entomologists offer fantastic "guarantees" and bargain prices, but you owe it to yourself to be SURE you are securing the services of a thoroughly reliable and FINANCIALLY RESPONSIBLE company whose guarantee really has a meaning.

An effective termite treatment must not only eliminate the termites now present in the structure, but also prevent the countless thousands of others, who live in the GROUND outside the house, from returning.

The almost unbelievable cunning of the termite makes the successful treatment of your property a job for those who have the proper equipment and the KNOW HOW. Further, because of the termites tenacity and persistence it is sometimes impossible to completely exterminate them with ONE treatment.

Therefore it is vital that the company doing the job be AVAILABLE later to return, if necessary. Unless you are SURE of this fact you may find yourself with a "Guarantee" but no one STILL IN BUSINESS to MAKE GOOD.

Always remember—a guarantee is only as good as the man who gives it.

We are local representatives of a reputable and FINANCIALLY RESPONSIBLE company who are ACCREDITED MEMBERS OF THE OHIO PEST CONTROL ASSOCIATION.

SPORT LOSING TOP DRIVER

Sep Palin Sells Trotter For $25,000, To Retire

CHICAGO, Sept. 5—Just a few days ago the nation's press carried a news story to the effect that Ralph Kroening, Milwaukee contractor and ardent horseman, had purchased a two-year-old trotter named Mainliner for $25,000 from S. F. (Sep) Palin of Indianapolis.

This sale not only marked the highest known price to be paid for a Standardbred horse this year it also marked a turn of events that may prove to be a big loss to the sport of harness racing.

With the sale of the juvenile colt by Worthy Boy-Sister Mary, went the last active connection of the veteran Palin with the sport of light harness racing. He still has a colt named With-out Funds, that is not racing. He has already severed his connections with regular racing stables and although he says, "he may buy a colt or two this fall," it is hardly probable that he will ever again return to the turf as an active driver.

It was the canny Hoosier reinsman who drove the immortal Greyhound to a cluster of records and who still at this date holds the honor of giving more horses a "two minute" record along with Hugh (Doc) Marshall than any other sulky pilot, past or present.

PALIN NOW SAYS that he is going to Indianapolis and "take it easy for awhile" watching over his rather extensive farm property. Perhaps in his leisure moments he will hark back to his days of glory when he drove such outstanding stars as Winniepeg, Star Etawah, Victory Song, Hoot Mon, Chief Abbedale, His Majesty and a host of other top ranking performers and get the itch to return to active participation. Most of his friends say he won't; time will only tell.

Barring any error in records, there is only one Standardbred horse known to hold a coveted "two minute" record or better for both gait of sulky speed, the trot and pace.

This feat was accomplished by Calumet Evelyn, a black mare by Guy Abbey-Marion Scott, generally driven in her appearances by Vic Fleming.

On Sept. 21, 1935, the beautiful lady of the turf trotted against time over the Big Red Mile at Lexington in 2:00. Four days later, attired in hobbles, she won a pacing race in the remarkable time of 1:59 1/4 to enter the "two minute list" as a side-wheeler.

She was driven to both records by Vic Fleming who also drove the fastest Standardbred of all time, Billy Direct, to his world pacing record of 1:55 just three years later over the same track.

All-Stars Lose To Reformatory

Tri-County League All-Stars suffered a 7-5 defeat Monday at the hand of the Chillicothe Reformatory team.

All six of Circleville's All-Star team players entered the contest, which featured a 4-4 deadlock in the sixth frame.

Pitcher Jack Hix was losing hurler in the match. Other Circleville players in the lineup were Abe Ruhl, Wilson Clark, Ed Webb, Dave Walters and Bob Steele.

Leafy Oak Trial Getting Start

KENTON, Sept. 5—Ten semi-final heats and three championships will be decided today at the Leafy Oak national con dog field trials here.

Indians Deny Lou To Be Sold

CHICAGO, Sept. 5—Front office brass of the Cleveland Indians and Chicago White Sox huddled during the Labor Day doubleheader in Comiskey Park and immediately touched off rumors Lou Boudreau will be sold to the Sox.

The rumors were just as quickly denied by Indians General Manager Hank Greenberg and Chicago General Manager Frank Lane.

The rumors had it that Boudreau would be named manager of the Sox succeeding Red Corriden.

Tom Shea Begins Grid Practice

Tom Shea left Circleville last weekend to begin fall football practice with the Tusculum Pioneers in Greenville, Tenn.

Shea, winner of the old Circleville Athletic Club award for outstanding play with the Circleville Tiger football team in 1942, played defensive back on the Pioneer squad last year because of an early season injury.

The Circleville footballer will be under the tutelage of Coach Tom Armstrong, former assistant coach of the Tigers when Shea attended school here.

61 Buck Grid Men Out For First Showing

COLUMBUS, Sept. 5—Ohio State's Buckeyes—61 strong, and eager as young bulls—took to the Ohio Stadium turf today for their first fall practice session of the 1950 football season.

Actually, the Buck huskies went through their initial drill strictly for the benefit of news-reel cameramen, news paper photographers and sports writers.

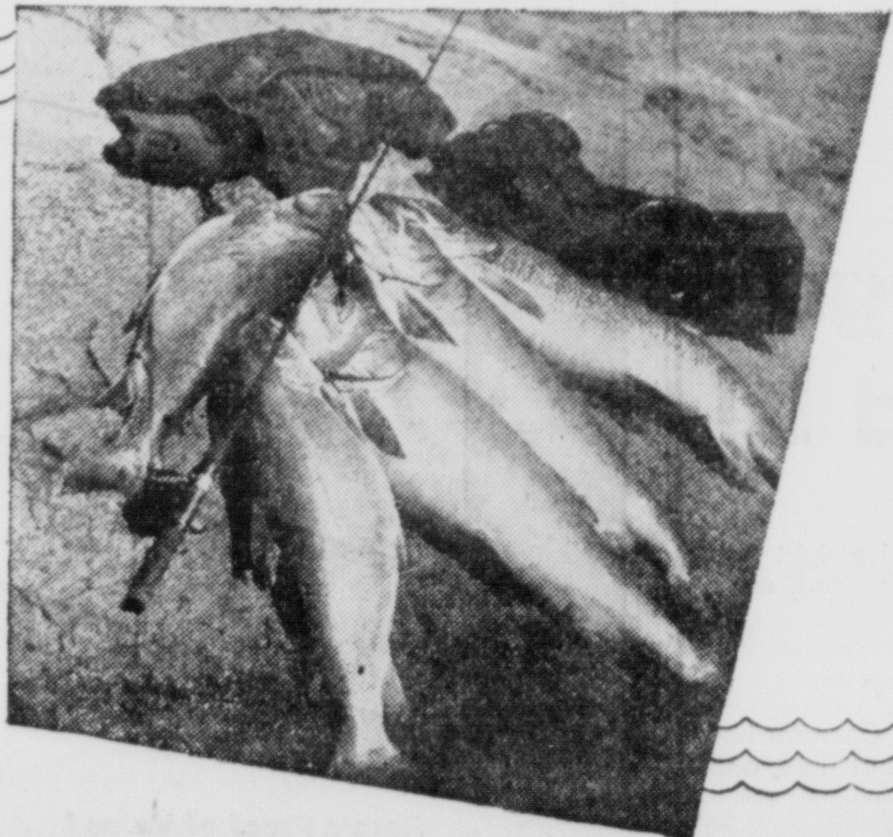

But after today, it will be all work as Buck Mentor Wes Fesler embarks on his self-appointed four-week rebuilding task.

That 28-day program, aimed specifically at Ohio State's Sept. 30 opener against Southern Methodist, gets underway at a two-day clip tomorrow and continues as such every day thereafter until Wes decides his boys have about reached their peak.

That should be sometime around Saturday, Sept. 23, when Ohio Stadium's new press box and the Buckeye varsity are scheduled for a double premiere in a full-dress rehearsal scrimmage.

Whether this year's outfit can match the antics of Fesler's 1949 Big Ten co-championship crew still is a moot question. Gone from the Rose Bowl winning squad are 21 lettermen, including most of the regulars from both Fesler's offensive and defensive platoons.

Frost-Nipped Corn Should Be Ensiled Quickly, Best Says

Paper, Wire Silos May Be Needed

Tips On Harvest Given By Agent

"If frost catches corn at any time before the kernels are dented it should be ensiled at once. Supplementary silos of paper and wire may be necessary," says Larry Best, Pickaway County Agricultural agent.

"Paper and wire for these supplementary or emergency silos are easy to get now. After frost everyone may be scrambling for the same materials if the corn is hurt."

A variety of quickly prepared silos for corn includes the paper lines rings of welded wire or cribbing, trenches wholly, or partly in the ground, boxes of wood or concrete set on the ground, and for large tonnages, piles of chopped corn held in place by nothing but poles set close together in a circle or in rows. Certainly, the first ones to fill would be the tower silos, whether empty or already partly full, Best declares.

When frosted before the ensiling stage, corn should be ensiled as soon after frost as possible to save leaves and to reduce losses that occur in the standing stems.

IF USING A forage harvester, Best continued, be careful to keep the light, dry leaves in the wagon. See that corn cut a n d bound for ordinary silage cutters does not suffer unnecessary leaf loss.

Uniform distribution of the chopped crop in the silo will keep the leaves from accumulating in one place in the silo. Wherever there are only leaves, the resulting soft spots in the silage may later mold.

Dried leaves of frosted corn make the crop seem to be dry until it is cut up. Best stated, but added water is unnecessary and usually harmful to the silage. Water merely adds to the drainage juices.

On another subject, Best declared that a good seedbed may mean the difference between a good wheat crop and a poor one.

Two conditions are foremost in

Glass Workers Start Strike

TOLEDO, Sept. 5 — Members of the AFL-American Flint Glass Workers Union of North America struck against commercial glass plants in six states today.

The union is asking for a 10 cent hourly raise and a three-day paid holiday when the men are not working. The contract dispute is with the National Association of Manufacturers of Pressed and Blown Glassware.

Chief Is Dead

MIDDLETOWN, Sept. 5—Thomas Carmody Jr., 44-year-old Middletown chief of police, died yesterday of a heart ailment.

preparing the seedbed for what. The first, continued Best, is a well settled condition; that is, freedom from airpockets and holes between the subsoil and the plow layer. This can best be assured if the land is plowed at least four to six weeks before seeding.

Rather than plow land for wheat only a week or so before seeding, Best says, it is usually best not to plow but simply disk the land.

THIS TYPE OF seedbed is usually inferior to an early plowed one but may be better than one plowed too late. In late plowing, unless there is a heavy rain to settle the seedbed rapidly, moisture conditions are not usually favorable for rapid germination and seed will sprout unevenly.

Truman Plans Telling Nation Of New Controls

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5—President Truman soon will tell the country what anti-inflation controls it can expect and how those curbs will affect each individual.

In his speech to the nation Friday night, the President gave some inkling of the controls to come by remarking that "we will have to give up many things we enjoy." He said he will outline the program in detail with another national message.

The President has almost unlimited authority under a proposal to puncture any balloons that might pull the economy into an inflation spiral—including the power to impose price and wage ceilings and to ration materials and services to the consumer.

But the chief executive is expected to rely on other authority under the measure to insure priorities for defense contracts and to allocate vital facilities and materials.

Mr. Truman may also issue regulations to curb consumer installment buying and to cut down on credit for new real estate construction and remodeling.

If the President decides to slap on price ceilings, it is expected that he will use his "selective" powers and choose those items on which prices already have zoomed or on which they threaten to get out of line.

The word "hooch," to indicate liquor, is derived from the Alaskan Indian village of Hoochinoo, meaning "grizzly bear fort."

'Papa Is Doing Fine,' Pilot Says After Rescue In Korea By 'Copter

PUSAN, Korea, Sept. 5—Helicopters proved their worth today—if there were any doubters.

An Army helicopter rescued a Mustang pilot behind enemy lines just as a gun-waving North Korean officer rushed toward the downed flier.

A Marine helicopter picked up a Marine Corsair pilot near friendly lines three minutes after his parachute dropped him to earth, then whisked him to a rear command post.

Sunday another 'copter tried to rescue a crash-landed Mustang pilot who apparently took to the hills to try to make his own way back.

Two helicopters were credited with saving 18 GI lives Monday by rushing the wounded men back to rear areas for emergency medical treatment by specialists.

Here is one of these incidents: Army First Lt. Paul Van Boven of San Mateo, Cal., working his helicopter in the Pohang sector, went out to help a pilot of a Mustang downed in enemy territory by small arms fire.

Lt. Van Boven and a medical man, Cpl. John Fuentz of Kansas City, Kas., rescued First Lt. Robert B. Wayne of Garden City, N. Y., who parachuted from his crippled Mustang behind enemy lines above Pohang.

Four Mustangs covered Van Boven as he dropped his slow, clumsy looking 'copter to the ground. The Mustangs did a good job but small arms fire buzzed near Van Boven.

Another pilot in Wayne's Mustang group, First Lt. Ray White of Austin, Tex., took care of a North Korean officer advancing on Wayne with gun in hand.

Returning to his home base in Japan, Wayne was informed

"your wife just presented you with an eight pound baby boy. Mother and son doing fine." Wayne shot back: "So is papa."

CHECKING ACCOUNT

The farmer's income is largely seasonal. There may be long weeks between the times when he receives actual cash for his products.

One of the signs of a good farmer, is a good bank account. It is a sign that his financial affairs are well managed and in good shape.

It is, therefore, especially desirable to the farmer to build up a good checking account, both as a reserve and to meet current expenses.
